Democrats Ponder Ways To Cope With Program

Some Question Military Cutback

Many in Both Parties Will Await Details Before Giving Decision

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—General applause for the military sections of President Eisenhower's State of the Union Message failed today to still voices in Congress questioning the wisdom of military manpower cutbacks.

Many Democrats and some Republicans said they will await further details before deciding about the proposal to trim strength from the Army, Navy and Marine Corps.

And, Sen. Russell (D.-Ga.), who will head the Senate Armed Services Committee, said he may reestablish a special preparedness subcommittee with broad powers to inquire into defense policies and operations.

"I am seriously considering this to deal with a number of problems," Russell said, adding that the watchdog group would be patterned after one headed by Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D.-Tex.) for more than two years prior to the Republican-controlled 83rd Congress.

Johnson is new majority leader of the Senate, and it seemed unlikely that in view of those responsibilities he would want to head such a subcommittee again.

Most lawmakers agreed with the President that this country and other free nations must continue to spend many billions on defense for years to come. And none appeared to disagree with his proposal for "balance and flexibility" in the armed services with emphasis upon air power and "new weapons, especially those of rapid and destructive power."

THE FORMER GENERAL said it was "at my personal direction" that the military policies were formulated, and he added: "In my judgment they will give our nation a defense accurately adjusted to the national need."

Sen. Jackson (D.-Wash.), who has been critical of the planned army reduction, said there appears to be "conflicting opinions" at the Pentagon on this.

"We had an atomic monopoly

President Puts Them On Defense

Leaders Say Issues Are 'New Idealism'

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—Democrats pondered today how to cope politically with what their leaders called a "New Dealism" domestic program laid before Congress yesterday by President Eisenhower.

The President appeared to have put the opposition party on the defensive with a 53-minute State of the Union message in which he either asked action or laid the groundwork for future requests on 33 foreign and domestic problems.

The first reaction to the President's call for unhesitating cooperation" between the Democratic-controlled Congress and the Republican executive branch was one of outwardly warm acceptance.

BUT WHILE THERE was ready agreement among lawmakers of both parties with Eisenhower's plea to "let the general good be our yardstick on every great issue of our time," signs of disagreement were not long in appearing.

Key Democrats criticized the President's plea for continuance of flexible farm price supports, called his report on economic conditions "too optomistic," attacked his local-federal "partnership" program of national resource development, turned thumbs down informally on proposed revision of the Taft-Hartley labor act, urged a larger boost in the statutory minimum wage than he suggested and disagreed with his indication that he does not believe Alaska is ready for statehood.

There was enthusiastic bipartisan backing for Eisenhower's foreign policy objective of attaining a "durable peace," but what was perhaps an ominous silence from Democratic ranks greeted his explanation of how he hopes to achieve military manpower reduction while maintaining the armed forces in balance.

THE FIRST of the Democrats' probing operations evidently would begin with this military program, when it is laid down in detail. Sen. Russell (D.-Ga.), incoming chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said he was "seriously considering" setting up a preparedness subcommittee to help with the job.

Other investigations seemed likely to extend beyond the usual congressional study of presidential legislative proposals to include such subjects as the administration's security program firings, its patronage operations and kindred subjects.

In what amounted to a chorus of agreement, Democratic leaders said Eisenhower was stealing past Democratic thunder in his prospals for extending health services, adjusting the formula for old age pensions, a promised new school aid program, extension of the small business act and a proposed huge highway building program.

SEN. LYNDON B. JOHNSON of Texas, the Democratic leader, said the President used a "Democratic premise" in his message, adding that Congress will consider his program "in that spirit."

Rep. John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, House Democratic leader, said that on domestic matters the President's message "might well be termed New Dealish."

Sen. Clements (D.-Ky.), assistant leader, was "glad to see the President joining the Democrats on so many fronts." He said proposals for reciprocal trade extension with tariff-cutting powers, the school construction program and the higher minimum wage all were part of Democratic programs."

Echoing the same note, Chairman Paul Butler of the Democratic National Committee found

Culver Will Terminate School Post

Principal Resigns Effective July 1

The resignation of Principal Theron L. Culver of Kingston High School was accepted "with regret" by the board of education last night.

It becomes effective July 1, 1955, at the termination of the present school year. Culver submitted his resignation to the board on April 30, 1954.

Culver became acting principal January 1, 1953, succeeding John Henry Martin. He served in that capacity for the balance of the school year 1953-54 and was named principal for the year 1954-55. As of July 1 he will have served as principal of the high school for two and a half years.

Prior to that he served as vice principal for many years, assuming that office in 1932.

CULVER SAID TODAY he has "some things in mind" but his plans were still indefinite.

Culver, a native of Vermont, was graduated from Middlebury College in 1913 with a BS degree and did graduate work at that college, Syracuse University and Teachers College, Columbia University. He received his MS degree at Middlebury College.

While at Middlebury College he was a member of the track team for four years and a member of the class basketball and baseball teams. He was also a member of the Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity, the Chemical Society and the college band in which he played the alto horn for four years. Later Culver played the

Water Unit To Propose Ordinance

Air-Conditioning Use to Be Subject

A proposed ordinance to limit and regulate use of city-supplied water in air-conditioning systems will be forwarded to the Common Council as the result of water board action last night.

The board aims at making the ordinance effective by next summer and prepared the ordinance for consideration of the aldermen subject to revision by the corporation counsel as to legalities.

It would require air conditioning permits, standards of operation, devices, inspections, and would impose penalties for violations.

Water conservation systems, now mandatory in many cities, would through such units as reclaiming towers, save an estimated 95 per cent of water used for air conditioning.

THE BOARD reported "con-

Talk Held On Fate of 11 Airmen

Secretary, Chou Meet in Peiping

Tokyo, Jan. 7 (AP)—Peiping radio said Dag Hammarskjold, secretary general of the United Nations met for 3 hours and 45 minutes today with Red China's Premier and Foreign Minister Chou En-lai.

The radio heard here, listed the advisers present for each side, but gave no report on the talks.

Presumably the talks centered around Hammerskjold's efforts to win freedom for 11 American airmen jailed as spies and other UN personnel held by Red China.

THE BROADCAST said Ahmed S. Bokhari, undersecretary of the United Nations; Per Lind, Hammarskjold's executive assistant, and Humphrey Waldock, professor of International Law, were with the UN group.

Present for the Reds besides Chou were Chang Han-fu, vice minister of foreign affairs; Prof. Chou Keng-shen, advisor to the foreign affairs ministry, and Tung Yueh-chien, director of the Department of International Organization of Conferences of the Ministery of Foreign Affairs.

THIS IS THE SAME group that conferred yesterday when the talks got underway.

The propaganda mouthpiece of Communist China has not yet told its listeners that Hammarskjold flew half way around the world in an effort to win freedom for UN personnel held by the Reds.

The UN official met with Chou yesterday for 3½ hours. A message from the Hammarskjold party to the UN reported merely that the meeting was held. There was no hint of either progress or stalemate.

Today's meeting was scheduled for 3 p. m. (2 a. m. EST).

Schools Are Closed

Binghamton, Jan. 7 (AP)—Approximately 23,500 school children in a four-county area got a holiday today as 21 rural districts suspended classes because of a overnight snowfall and icy country roads.

Teachers Ask Board To Rescind Regulations

The Kingston Teachers Federation asked the board of education last night to rescind regulations adopted recently governing use of school bulletin boards and mail boxes by teacher organizations.

In a letter to the board signed by President Michael Aronica it was requested that the following rules be substituted:

1. All communications via mail boxes, bulletin boards, etc. shall be carried on only after the permission of the principal or principals involved has been obtained.

2. This permission shall not be refused provided that (a) the material affects teachers and has been composed by teachers and (b) the material contains nothing libelous or illegal.

Board President Robert Herzog referred the request to Louis Bruhn, chairman of the rules committee, for study and report.

THE KTF LETTER pointed out that "for years teachers and their organizations have freely communicated by means of mail boxes, bulletin boards, etc. No controversy has ever arisen over this. Now, because one man has objected to a poster, the like of which was found acceptable by

Two Are Rescued From Volcano

Tokyo, Jan. 7 (AP)—Two young lovers who tried to commit suicide by leaping into a boiling volcano were rescued today after 33 hours near the hissing lava.

They plunged into the crater yesterday. Trying to end an unhappy love affair. They tumbled hundreds of feet down the slick steep sides of the crater, but missed the deadly lava at the bottom.

THEIR PITIFUL CRIES for help could be heard on the rim, but the couple themselves were hidden by the steaming sulphur fumes that curled around the crater floor.

Seven policemen descended into the treacherous pit this afternoon and carried the two perhaps 1,000 feet up the slopes, the newspaper Asahi said.

The woman's ankle was smashed and she was covered with blood. Police said she was in critical condition. The man escaped virtually unscathed.

The woman was identified as Miss Setsumi Endo, 21, a waitress in a Tokyo cafe. The man was identified as Satoru Takayanagi, 22, ill of tuberculosis.

THEY TOLD POLICE they had decided Takayanagi was incurable and their love was doomed.

Their rescue was almost miraculous.

Mt. Mihara volcano is on sparsely settled Oshima island about 15 miles off the east coast of Japan.

Only two expeditions ever reached the floor of the crater. Neither was able to approach the hissing lava although they had elaborate and expensive equipment from the mainland.

Expedition members who have seen it say it is littered with the

Arterial Route Status Uncertain

Plans for Kingston's arterial route system are still under way, it was learned today, but state sources were unable to indicate whether Gov. Harriman's policy of cutting spending for public works projects, will interfere with their fulfillment.

One source said the plans will be completed regardless of whether the state is prepared to start work on them this year. They are being done under contract and will be completed under the original agreement, but there appears to be no assurance now as to allocation of funds for the job.

THE PROJECT might have priority status because of its connection with the New York State Thruway, but no state source appears to know anything definite at this time as to whether such priority exists.

The arterial route project would give the city a spur connection with the thruway from a point near the western end of Broadway. Streets designated as part of the route would be widened and the whole system would be maintained by the state.

Also pending is an application by the city for a public service order to eliminate the Washington avenue viaduct as part of the project. A hearing was held on this last month and a decision as a result of it is expected within the next few weeks.

Parking Is Discussed by Business Men

A movement to interest city officials in the local parking situation was discussed at a meeting of the Kingston Uptown Business Men's Association Thursday evening.

At a meeting held at the county court house the importance of good parking in the business areas was stressed. It was pointed out that there is a movement throughout the country to move business to points where parking is available and this frequently means suburban shopping centers.

Removal of business from the easily reached areas of cities can decrease real estate values, reduce tax revenues to cities and in general result in loss of property values.

TO ELIMINATE THIS situation in Kingston members of the association discussed the possibility of interesting the city officials in assisting in maintaining and putting into first class condition facilities for parking which are adjacent to the shopping areas. It was pointed out that the merchants themselves have invested more than $12,000 in establishing a parking area off North Front street.

Few cities have the convenient parking area so close to the business area and it was pointed out that with the expenditure of a modest sum by the city this area could be made much more available. Assistance in lighting the area, maintaining the grounds and for installation of a convenient stairway leading from the parking area to North Front street, were among the items recommended.

LOUIS KANTROWITZ, president of the Association, presided and George Schneider was named chairman of the nominating committee to present a slate of officers at the annual meeting.

Albert Flanagan and Harold Kantrowitz were named a committee to make arrangements for the annual dinner and business meeting to be held in March. At that time new officers will be named.

Other matters of concern to the business interests of the city were discussed.

Indictments Dismissed

Republicans Say Harriman Motives 'Sinister, Shameful', Left-Wingish

Albany, Jan. 7 (AP)—The Republican state chairman said today that Gov. Harriman was trying to blame the GOP "for tax increases needed to finance a socialistic welfare state planned by his left-wing, poverty-crying advisers."

L. Judson Morhouse declared that "sinister and shameful" motives had prompted the Democratic governor to voice deep concern about the condition of the state treasury.

Harriman has not said what he plans to do about taxes.

The state chairman's blast was the latest in a drumfire touched off by Harriman's claim in his message to the Legislature that the Dewey administration had spent the state into the red.

Despite the attacks, Harriman's press secretary indicated last night, the governor will keep in force — at least until Feb. 1—an order barring big new state construction contracts.

Charles H. Van Devander made public the text of the governor's order. It forbade until further notice "new construction undertakings depleting the capital construction fund . . . unless specifically approved by the director of the budget."

STATE LAW requires the budget director's approval for all such contracts, anyway. But Van Devander said that "in general presumably" there would be no approvals, pending a study of the fund.

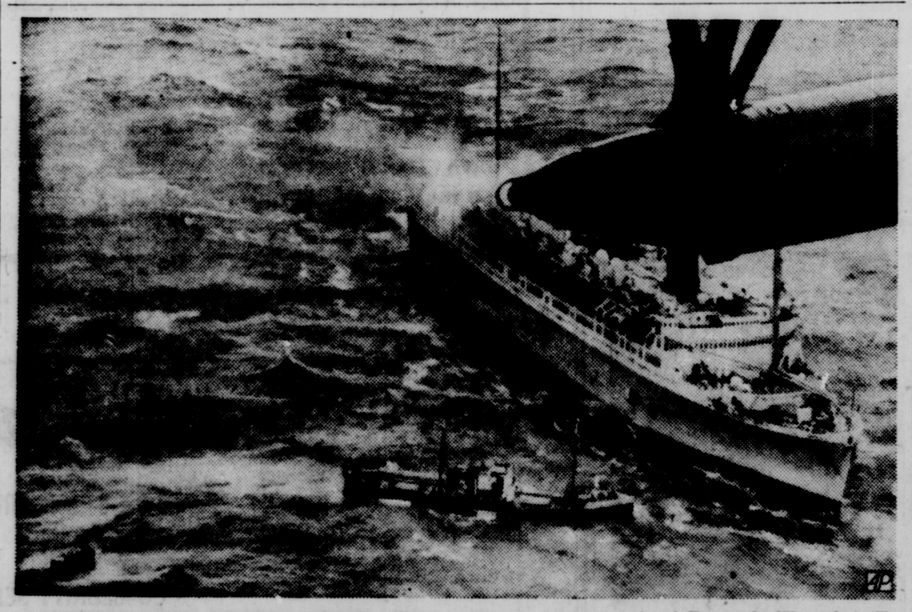

He added that in specific "cases of necessity" the budget director might give the go-ahead for a specific contract.

In answer to a reporter's question, Vandevander said it would be a "fair assumption" that the ban would stay in force until Harriman delivered his budget message to the Legislature on Feb. 1. The message will review the state's finances, he explained.

The governor's order, Vandevander said, applies only to projects that would require new money from the capital construction fund and not to projects from which money already had been appropriated from the fund.

Work in progress will not be halted, he emphasized.

Hospitalization Survey: Women Live Longer

Chicago, Jan. 7 (AP) — Women not only have a six year longer life span than men but apparently live more hale and hardy lives.

This was despite the fact that an average of one-sixth of all persons admitted to hospitals are pregnant women.

The women outclassed the men healthwise in every age bracket. Even in the childbearing ages of 15 to 44 years there was an excess of 13,233 males in the 6,539 registered hospitals covered in the survey.

The results of the survey, made by the Bureau of Economic Research of the American Medical Assn., came as a big surprise.

Dr. Frank G. Dickinson, Ph.D., bureau director, said it was believed when the survey started that no more than 40 to 45 per cent of the patients would be males.

"The evidence of higher hospital incidence or morbidity rates of males strongly implies that

Losers Spent Much More In 1954 Election Drive

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—The losers spent about $800,000 more than the winners in the 1954 national election campaign for control of Congress.

Reports filed with the clerk of the House showed today that four Republican national organizations spent about $3,716,184 last year, when they were fighting unsuccessfully to keep their thin margin in Congress in last November's elections.

That was about 28 per cent more than indicated spending for national Democratic groups, who saw their candidates take over control of the House and the Senate this week by a slender majority. The Democratic figure includes spending by national labor political organizations, which invest large amounts in Democratic campaigns, with hardly a trickle to Republican candidates.

The Democratic-labor spending reported so far was $2,822,631, but the figure was not quite complete because one group, the CIO's Political Action Committee—has not reported on the last two months of 1954.

Both the Republican and the Democratic-labor groups reported almost exactly the same total deficit for the year: About $266,000 each.

At a meeting held at the county court house the importance of good parking in the business areas was stressed. It was pointed out that there is a movement throughout the country to move business to points where parking is available and this frequently means suburban shopping centers.

Removal of business from the easily reached areas of cities can decrease real estate values, reduce tax revenues to cities and in general result in loss of property values.

TO ELIMINATE THIS situation in Kingston members of the association discussed the possibility of interesting the city officials in assisting in maintaining and putting into first class condition facilities for parking which are adjacent to the shopping areas. It was pointed out that the merchants themselves have invested more than $12,000 in establishing a parking area off North Front street.

Few cities have the convenient parking area so close to the business area and it was pointed out that with the expenditure of a modest sum by the city this area could be made much more available. Assistance in lighting the area, maintaining the grounds and for installation of a convenient stairway leading from the parking area to North Front street, were among the items recommended.

LOUIS KANTROWITZ, president of the Association, presided and George Schneider was named chairman of the nominating committee to present a slate of officers at the annual meeting.

Albert Flanagan and Harold Kantrowitz were named a committee to make arrangements for the annual dinner and business meeting to be held in March. At that time new officers will be named.

Other matters of concern to the business interests of the city were discussed.

Republicans Say Harriman Motives 'Sinister, Shameful', Left-Wingish

Albany, Jan. 7 (AP)—The Republican state chairman said today that Gov. Harriman was trying to blame the GOP "for tax increases needed to finance a socialistic welfare state planned by his left-wing, poverty-crying advisers."

L. Judson Morhouse declared that "sinister and shameful" motives had prompted the Democratic governor to voice deep concern about the condition of the state treasury.

Harriman has not said what he plans to do about taxes.

The state chairman's blast was the latest in a drumfire touched off by Harriman's claim in his message to the Legislature that the Dewey administration had spent the state into the red.

Despite the attacks, Harriman's press secretary indicated last night, the governor will keep in force — at least until Feb. 1—an order barring big new state construction contracts.

Charles H. Van Devander made public the text of the governor's order. It forbade until further notice "new construction undertakings depleting the capital construction fund . . . unless specifically approved by the director of the budget."

STATE LAW requires the budget director's approval for all such contracts, anyway. But Van Devander said that "in general presumably" there would be no approvals, pending a study of the fund.

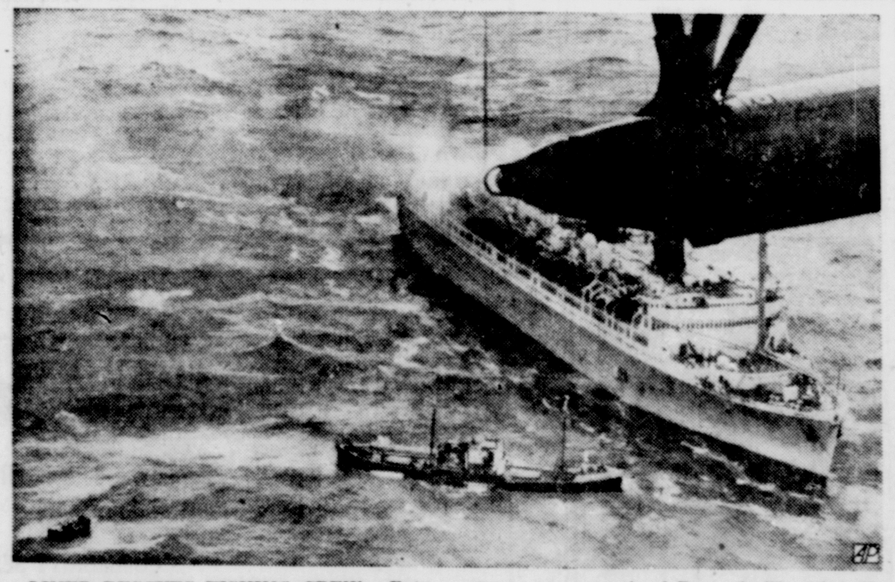

He added that in specific "cases of necessity" the budget director might give the go-ahead for a specific contract.

In answer to a reporter's question, Vandevander said it would be a "fair assumption" that the ban would stay in force until Harriman delivered his budget message to the Legislature on Feb. 1. The message will review the state's finances, he explained.

The governor's order, Vandevander said, applies only to projects that would require new money from the capital construction fund and not to projects from which money already had been appropriated from the fund.

Work in progress will not be halted, he emphasized.

Hospitalization Survey: Women Live Longer

Chicago, Jan. 7 (AP) — Women not only have a six year longer life span than men but apparently live more hale and hardy lives.

This was despite the fact that an average of one-sixth of all persons admitted to hospitals are pregnant women.

The women outclassed the men healthwise in every age bracket. Even in the childbearing ages of 15 to 44 years there was an excess of 13,233 males in the 6,539 registered hospitals covered in the survey.

The results of the survey, made by the Bureau of Economic Research of the American Medical Assn., came as a big surprise.

Dr. Frank G. Dickinson, Ph.D., bureau director, said it was believed when the survey started that no more than 40 to 45 per cent of the patients would be males.

"The evidence of higher hospital incidence or morbidity rates of males strongly implies that

Losers Spent Much More In 1954 Election Drive

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—The losers spent about $800,000 more than the winners in the 1954 national election campaign for control of Congress.

Reports filed with the clerk of the House showed today that four Republican national organizations spent about $3,716,184 last year, when they were fighting unsuccessfully to keep their thin margin in Congress in last November's elections.

That was about 28 per cent more than indicated spending for national Democratic groups, who saw their candidates take over control of the House and the Senate this week by a slender majority. The Democratic figure includes spending by national labor political organizations, which invest large amounts in Democratic campaigns, with hardly a trickle to Republican candidates.

The Democratic-labor spending reported so far was $2,822,631, but the figure was not quite complete because one group, the CIO's Political Action Committee—has not reported on the last two months of 1954.

Both the Republican and the Democratic-labor groups reported almost exactly the same total deficit for the year: About $266,000 each.

Plans Outlined By Air Academy

New York, Jan. 7 (AP) — The air force let the public in today on its plan for a "West Point of the Air" — which soon will join the military academy, Annapolis and the coast guard academy in training officers for the armed forces.

The catalog for the projected air force academy outlines the program of instruction.

In its description of the course labeled "Geography 101-102," to be given in the freshman year, the catalog states "particular emphasis is placed on the comparative potentials of the United States and the USRR."

IN DESCRIBING work to be undertaken in a course in "airmanship," the catalog says "upon completion the cadet will be qualified to plan and act as navigator on a polar flight."

Lt. Gen. H. R. Harmon, designated to be superintendent of the air force academy when it opens in temporary quarters at Lowry Air Force Base, Denver, next July, invited newsmen to a seminar at Columbia University today to discuss plans for the school.

Set up under the same law that governs operation of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, the air force academy is expected to go into permanent quarters near Colorado Springs, Colo., in 1957.

ONLY A FRESHMAN class will be enrolled this year, with new classes entering each year until a full four-year student body is enrolled in 1958. Not until then, according to an air force announcement, will the academy meet West Point, Annapolis or civilian schools in varsity level athletic events.

The academy will not be a flying school, although some graduates will go on to become pilots and all cadets will be taken aloft for training in navigation, etc. Its primary job will be to give a young man the foundation in social sciences, the humanities and science necessary for "a lifetime of service to his country, leading to readiness for responsibilities as a future air commander."

Entrance to the academy ultimately will be on the same basis as entrance to West Point, but the first class will be limited to 300 men because of limited space at Lowry.

Graduates of the academy will be commissioned second lieutenants and will be rated as aircraft observers.

State Uses 15 Billion Gallons of Water Daily

Syracuse, Jan. 7 (AP)—It takes more than 15 billion gallons of water a day to "keep the Empire State's social and economic structure well-wetted," a consultant on natural resources says.

Dr. Morris M. Cohn, adviser to the Joint Legislative Committee on Natural Resources, spoke yesterday at a meeting of the New York State Assn. of Soil Conservation Districts.

He said that efforts to save water must be based upon orderly procedures, equitable practices and sensible policies.

"We may impound water, purify it, pump it and distribute it but we can't manufacture it," he said.

Cohn said that a process was being developed for de-salting sea water at a cost possibly as low as 8½ cents for each thousand gallons.

At the closing session, the group elected Harold S. Wright of Pawling, president; Oliver Hyatt of Cherry Plain, vice president, and Harold Craig of Clinton, secretary-treasurer.

Kauder Pens Are First and Second For U. S. Tests

Two pens of Kauder New Hampshires brought another big batch of honors to the Kauder breeding farm in New Paltz. Irving Kauder, internationally famous breeder, says of the two pens, "Our two Storrs pens of New Hampshires certainly surprised everybody when they ended the year in both first and second place for their breed at the Storrs International Laying Contest and finished first for their breed at all U. S. Tests for 1954.

THESE TERRIFIC LAYERS scored 3,547 and 3,503 points respectively, and in these pens there were three birds over 300 eggs, four over 300 points, which means a lot to the chicken man in terms of breeding accomplishment.

Actually, these two pens did more than just place first and second, for no other breeder of New Hampshires has achieved this combination of winnings in the last 10 years, or during the time Kauder New Hampshires have been in official competition. Both pens were in the high 20 pens at the Storrs Test—a major accomplishment in itself.

Other Kauder New Hampshires also finished in the upper brackets this last contest year. Kauder pens were first at the Florida Test, first at the Pennsylvania Test, and second at the Rhode Island Official Test for their breed. A Pen of Kauder Leghorns was second for the breed at the Rhode Island Test.

FROM EARLY REPORTS from semi-official sources, it looks as if Kauder New Hampshires would have two other terrific accomplishments as a result of their performance this past year. These are the highest-of-breed record in the well-known Poultry Tribune Trophy Contest, and highest average for the breed for the last three years for all official U. S. Tests.

State Uses 15 Billion Gallons of Water Daily

Syracuse, Jan. 7 (AP)—It takes more than 15 billion gallons of water a day to "keep the Empire State's social and economic structure well-wetted," a consultant on natural resources says.

Dr. Morris M. Cohn, adviser to the Joint Legislative Committee on Natural Resources, spoke yesterday at a meeting of the New York State Assn. of Soil Conservation Districts.

He said that efforts to save water must be based upon orderly procedures, equitable practices and sensible policies.

"We may impound water, purify it, pump it and distribute it but we can't manufacture it," he said.

Cohn said that a process was being developed for de-salting sea water at a cost possibly as low as 8½ cents for each thousand gallons.

Woman to Inherit Grandmother's Fortune

Chicago, Jan. 7 (AP)—An attractive, dark-haired 28-year-old woman, heiress to a fortune left by her grandmother, watched yesterday as state tax examiners counted stocks and securities valued at millions of dollars.

Mollie Netcher Bragno, with only a $5 bill and a few coins in her purse, was present at the opening of the last safety deposit boxes where her grandmother had kept more than 10 million dollars. Final value of the estate must await determination of the value of stocks.

Her grandmother, Mrs. Mollie Netcher Newbury, was one of Chicago's most famous business women. The fortune derives from the old Boston store, a State street department store started by Mrs. Newbury's first husband, Charles Netcher, and operated by her after his death in 1905. She died Dec. 12 at the age of 87.

Why We Say--

Kauder Pens Are First and Second For U. S. Tests

Two pens of Kauder New Hampshires brought another big batch of honors to the Kauder breeding farm in New Paltz. Irving Kauder, internationally famous breeder, says of the two pens, "Our two Storrs pens of New Hampshires certainly surprised everybody when they ended the year in both first and second place for their breed at the Storrs International Laying Contest and finished first for their breed at all U. S. Tests for 1954.

THESE TERRIFIC LAYERS scored 3,547 and 3,503 points respectively, and in these pens there were three birds over 300 eggs, four over 300 points, which means a lot to the chicken man in terms of breeding accomplishment.

Actually, these two pens did more than just place first and second, for no other breeder of New Hampshires has achieved this combination of winnings in the last 10 years, or during the time Kauder New Hampshires have been in official competition. Both pens were in the high 20 pens at the Storrs Test—a major accomplishment in itself.

Other Kauder New Hampshires also finished in the upper brackets this last contest year. Kauder pens were first at the Florida Test, first at the Pennsylvania Test, and second at the Rhode Island Official Test for their breed. A Pen of Kauder Leghorns was second for the breed at the Rhode Island Test.

FROM EARLY REPORTS from semi-official sources, it looks as if Kauder New Hampshires would have two other terrific accomplishments as a result of their performance this past year. These are the highest-of-breed record in the well-known Poultry Tribune Trophy Contest, and highest average for the breed for the last three years for all official U. S. Tests.

Christmas Returns Reveal Not a Single $50,000 Gift

BY SAUL PETT
(For Hal Boyle)

New York (AP)—The stores are still full of people returning Christmas gifts for exchange, and you'd be surprised by what is returned and what isn't.

For example, not a single woman has returned a single $50,000 necklace to Tiffany's, which must prove that women are getting easier to satisfy.

Oh, now and then somebody exchanges a $5,000 ring for one with sapphires and rubies, instead of diamonds. But nothing really expensive, said a spokesman.

(When I phoned the spokesman at Cartier's about the question of exchanges, there was a long silence, in which, I think, he checked my credit rating on another line. Finally, he said, "no comment," in tones so rich and deep I hung up with all the tip-toeing respect of a man slipping out of a cathedral.)

"They're usually very indignant," said a lady at the hearing aid bureau "they insist they're not at all deaf but when you talk to them they can't hear a word your're saying."

"You get a lot of returns in perfume and lingerie, especially black lingerie. It's our impression that men lean more to the exotic than suits their wives' tastes. Many women return the black lingerie for something more practical."

This year Macy's is having slightly fewer returns of ladies clothes because of size difficulties. That probably is due to the fact that during the Christmas rush every sales woman selling clothes for women wore the tag, "if she's my size, she wears a 14" (or whatever the clerk wears).

THE STORE also tags everything in such a way that they no longer find themselves exchanging other store's goods. In past post-Christmas periods, they found that in a certain perfume and cigarette lighter they were getting more returns than they had originally stocked before Christmas.

According to the New York sales manager, not a single man has tried since Christmas to exchange an $8,000, air-conditioned limousine because his wife didn't like the color. It happened once or twice earlier in the year without success. Once a car is sold and registered, it can't be exchanged.

At Lewis & Conger, a housewares store, several portable bars were returned. "No," said one man, "I didn't even use it New Year's Eve. What? Well, how should I know why it smells of bourbon?"

SOMETHING CALLED a "deede" cap was returned by an indignant woman. A "deede" cap, it turns out, is for women who want to hide their own hair when it's up in curlers. The cap fits over the crown of the head and on the front it has real bangs or curls.

This particular woman who returned the item was brunette. Why, she demanded to know, had her husband bought her a "deede" with blond bangs?

At the Wing & Fin Pet Center, it was reported that most of what they call "dry" (or inanimate) merchandise returned is returned for reasons of size.

"You'd be surprised," a man said, "how many people will buy party collars or bathrobes or even cocktail coats for their animals without knowing their size."

That's exactly what the man said. He also said that in returns of "live" merchandise, puppies and kittens predominate.

"When this happens," the man explained, "it's usually because somebody was over-enthusiastic in planning a surprise. They didn't consult the woman who would have to take care of the pet.

"Fish? For some reason, we get no returns of fish at all. But you'd be surprised how many alligators are returned. I guess they come as a shock to some people."

U. S.-Made Plane To Be in Service

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—An American-made plane has been cleared for service by an Indian government airline which plans to operate it to Canton in Communist China.

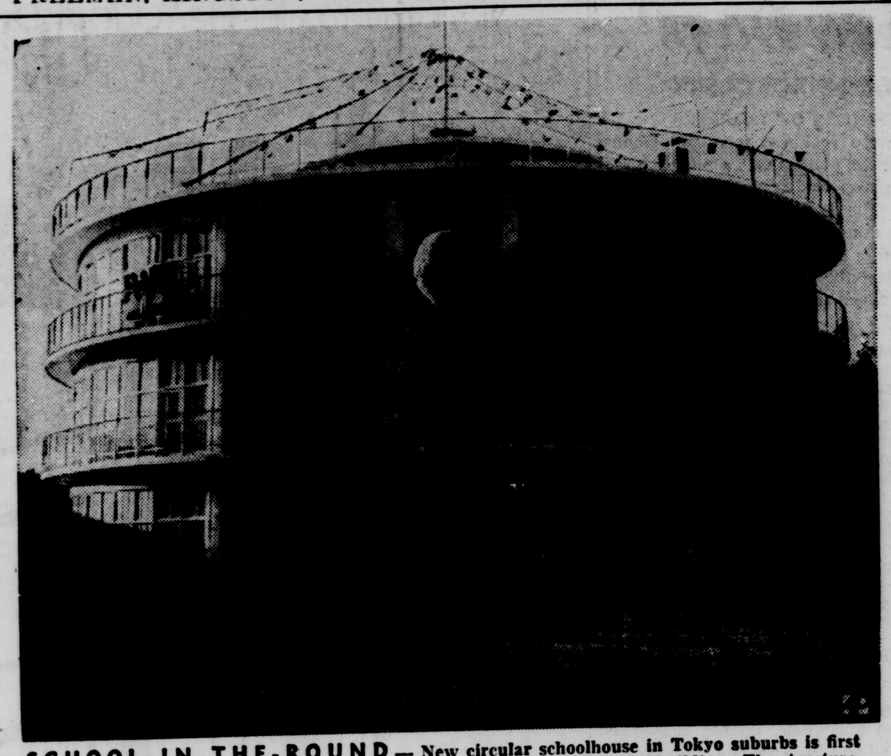

In selling ships to foreign governments, the United States normally seeks assurances they will not be used for trade with Communist ports where U. S. cargo vessels may not go.

Secretary of State Dulles, however, yesterday granted an export license for the super Constellation without requiring that India abandon plans for flights to Canton. A department spokesman said India had pledged the plane would not be sold or transferred to any foreign sources without a U. S. okay.

The Lockheed plane, now at Burbank, Calif., is one of three built for India. They are fully equipped with radar and electronic equipment. The State Department said export permits for the other two planes will be issued when they are ready.

Perry Enthused About Greenville, Clean Community

Alderman Samuel Perry, home from a trip to the southland, said he spent an enjoyable tour of Greenville, S. C., inspecting municipal facilities at the invitation of officials in the community of 60,000 inhabitants.

"It is one of the cleanest and most hospitable communities I've ever been in," said the representative of the Fifth Ward in conversing with a reporter.

PERRY SAID he visited the office of Mayor Kenneth Cass, had a long conference with City Manager Gerald Shaw, and enjoyed a whole afternoon's tour with J. F. Goodwin, assistant superintendent of public works.

About rubbish disposal, Perry said the southern community uses the land-fill method on a 184-acre tract near the city line, operating with two men and machines that dig long trenches, which take care daily of 135 truckloads of all waste, including garbage.

Perry observed that penalties for infractions of Greenville law were in the form of sentences on work gangs. Prisoners must labor for the municipality, he said, wearing the old style striped suits once common in penal institutions.

THE OCCASION of his 800-mile trip to Greenville was a visit to Donaldson Air Force Base to spend some time with A/2c and Mrs. Kenneth Kouhoupt and their five-month old son, Kenneth. Airman Kouhoupt is a son of Mrs. Perry. Also on the trip were Mrs. Nicholas Lasher, 12 Stuyvesant street, mother of Mrs. Kouhoupt, and her son Vincent.

Dr. Bigelow Dies

Peekskill, Jan. 7 (AP)—Dr. Maurice A. Bigelow, professor emeritus at Columbia University who wrote books on hygiene and sex education, died yesterday in Peekskill Hospital. He was 82. Bigelow, who recently had lived in Cortland, was a native of Milford Center, Ohio, and was educated at Ohio Wesleyan, Northwestern and Harvard Universities. He started his teaching career as a biology instructor at Wesleyan, and joined the Columbia faculty in 1894. Bigelow was named a full professor there in 1907.

THE RUMINATOR

By HUMPHREY B. NEILL
A Column of Contrary Opinion

In all the hullabaloo over the predicted prosperity which lies ahead (according to published comments of VIP'S, pundits, and lesser mortals) we might take time out to inquire how much further our liberties are to be encroached upon.

I feel a slight chill as I look forward into 1955.

I shiver at the ponderous predictions of our materialistic welfare—which seems to me to be rather heavily weighted with liberalistic fanfare.

WHERE DO YOU FIND, in our mass-circulated newspapers and magazines, stimulating or inspiring editorials or articles testifying to the noble edifice of the free-enterprise system which HAS MADE AMERICA GREAT?

I've had my fill of "peaceful coexistence"—which you bump into on every page. I'd like a little old-fashioned rugged individualism and patriotic nationalism mixed in with my reading. I'm fed up with liberalism as a steady diet; it's too mealy mouthed. Libertarianism gives you something to chew on, but you have to hunt to unearth it.

For 1955, give me the good old American spirit of individual persistence, and the coexistence idea will take care of itself.

LET ME ASK you this: Why is it that the liberal, or left-wing, attitudes and writings are becoming so widely popularized? How can it be that under a Republican administration leftist tendencies remain in vogue?

I'll leave it to you to find the answer. However, it was encourageing to come across a book review in the Wall Street Journal a few days concerning the "Life of John Stuart Mill" . . . and to receive in the mail the first of a series of pamphlets stoutly defending the capitalist system by Major L. L. B. Angas.

Referring to the former, William H. Chamberlin's discussion of Mill—who Chamberlin says might be called "Mr. Liberty"—was vastly refreshing when so many non-fiction reviews are canted leftward (and when so many right-wing books get scant attention). You will like this quotation from John Stuart Mill's mighty Essay on Liberty:

> "Mankind are greater gainers by suffering each other to live as seems good to themselves than by compelling each to live as seems good to the rest."

As a reminder to you and to me to re-read Mill's Essay on Liberty, the reviewer added this thought from Mill: "The worth of a state, in the long run, is the worth of individuals composing it."

IT TAKES A STOUT heart these days to robustly and fearlessly defend the capitalist system with apologies. I for one congratulate Major Angas for undertaking it. This writer happens to know how much time and effort he has put in, and is putting in, to present irrefutable arguments that will reveal in: glaring lights the illusions and delusions of socialism (and communism).

The first in a series of pamphlets by Major Angas is titled "Capitalist Counter Attack" (A Capitalist Manifesto). After enumerating the seven kinds of socialism, you are carried at once to the root evil of socialism; namely, the illusion that "profits are immoral." (Socialists assert that profits can only be made by (1) underpaying workers, or by (2) over-charging consumers, the author tells us.)

The nub here is the common ignorance concerning what "profit" really is; thus the lack of understanding of a "profits system."

MAJOR ANGAS THEN tellingly "gives the lie" to popular Marxist slogans, such as the anti-capitalist one: "Production is for profit, not for use." As the author says, "the first part of the statement is obviously true; the second half . . . a Big Lie." As every manufacturer knows only too well, produced goods MUST be useful if profits are to be made. Mr. and Mrs. Consumer will quickly kill the profits if they cannot, or do not wish to, use the products in question.

The pamphlet continues with an exposition of "counter attacks" that cannot fail to convince the reader of leftward leanings that he is heading toward self-destruction; that he should turn back toward the "right." I shall hope later to bring you further information on this series of pamphlets which, I believe, can do much to PRESERVE OUR LIBERTIES.

Boston (AP)—Two Doberman Pinscher dogs patrol a big department store here at night. The dogs are adept at sniffing out hiding thieves, store officials say.

Anglo Rail Strike Has Been Suspended

London, Jan. 7 (AP)—Britons breathed easier today after union leaders supended a call for a nationwide railroad strike which could have crippled the nation's booming economy. But union Secretary "Big Jim" Campbell warned a new strike call would go out if further wage talks are not satisfactory.

The suspension of the walkout was announced last night following a long government-called conference between officials of the 400,000-strong National Union of Railwaymen (NUR) and the British Transport Commission, which runs the state-owned lines. The walkout had been scheduled for Sunday midnight.

Union officials said the transport chiefs agreed that "wage rates would be adjusted" and that "there would be no haggling."

The pay scale for British railwaymen now ranges from the equivalent of $17.06 to $24.36 a week.

If the movies on TV get much older the cowboys will be riding dinosaurs.

Careful Attention Is Needed For Proper Check-Writing

New York, Jan. 7 (AP)—Take another look at that batch of canceled checks you just received from your bank. That gift check you doled out at Christmas may have been even more generous than you imagined.

Instead of a $10 check made out to "cash" and sent to a friend, you may now have in your possession, properly canceled and paid by your bank, a $100 check signed by "Cash Johnson," a well-versed check swindler.

IN SHORT, you may have been one of the thousands of Americans victimized by a check forger. More than 50 million dollars are stolen every year by check swindlers, and the responsibility for the loss, in most cases, is borne by the writer of the check. Banks, hotels and retail establishments are usually insured against such losses.

Since World War 2, the banking industry has campaigned to make checking accounts popular. As a result, four times as many checks are written today as in 1939. More than 60 million checks are cashed every banking day. And for each dollar in cash a bank handles, $150 in checks are written.

The American Bankers Assn. claims that individuals, merchants, hotels and industry shoulder about 90 per cent of check forgery losses with banks taking roughly 10 per cent.

The association tells its members to require substantial proof of identity before cashing a check. It has coined the slogan: "Strangers are not always crooks, but crooks are usually strangers."

A. H. Crowe of the Burns Detective Agency, a specialist in the field, says that 95 per cent of forged checks today bear fictitious names. But, he adds, the swindler, usually has plenty of "identification" equally forged. This "identification" may even include a "birth certificate" or "driver's license"

Some frequent methods of cheating on checks are: Altering the name of the payee; raising the amount; changing the date (especially of lost or stopped checks); forging signatures; counterfeiting existing checks and printing fictitious checks.

ANOTHER CRIME becoming serious in recent bank frauds is "check kiting." In this case, the bank employe, who is part of the swindle, permits a "customer" to write checks for which there are no funds. Some of these losses have run as high as $500,000.

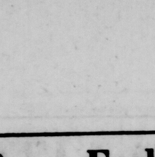

Forging checks is a crime with a long history. It was practiced so much during the 19th century in England that the penalty was made death by hanging. Penalties vary in this country from state to state, but always involve a prison sentence.

Here are some tips in writing checks which usually prevent alterations: Always write in ink and use an indelible ink. Begin at the extreme left end of the name and amount lines, leaving as little space as possible between numerals and written words. Fill in blank spaces on checks by drawing lines through them. Avoid writing checks to "bearer" or "cash."

Christmas Returns Reveal Not a Single $50,000 Gift

BY SAUL PETT
(For Hal Boyle)

New York (AP)—The stores are still full of people returning Christmas gifts for exchange, and you'd be surprised by what is returned and what isn't.

For example, not a single woman has returned a single $50,000 necklace to Tiffany's, which must prove that women are getting easier to satisfy.

Oh, now and then somebody exchanges a $5,000 ring for one with sapphires and rubies, instead of diamonds. But nothing really expensive, said a spokesman.

(When I phoned the spokesman at Cartier's about the question of exchanges, there was a long silence, in which, I think, he checked my credit rating on another line. Finally, he said, "no comment," in tones so rich and deep I hung up with all the tip-toeing respect of a man slipping out of a cathedral.)

"They're usually very indignant," said a lady at the hearing aid bureau "they insist they're not at all deaf but when you talk to them they can't hear a word your're saying."

"You get a lot of returns in perfume and lingerie, especially black lingerie. It's our impression that men lean more to the exotic than suits their wives' tastes. Many women return the black lingerie for something more practical."

This year Macy's is having slightly fewer returns of ladies clothes because of size difficulties. That probably is due to the fact that during the Christmas rush every sales woman selling clothes for women wore the tag, "if she's my size, she wears a 14" (or whatever the clerk wears).

THE STORE also tags everything in such a way that they no longer find themselves exchanging other store's goods. In past post-Christmas periods, they found that in a certain perfume and cigarette lighter they were getting more returns than they had originally stocked before Christmas.

According to the New York sales manager, not a single man has tried since Christmas to exchange an $8,000, air-conditioned limousine because his wife didn't like the color. It happened once or twice earlier in the year without success. Once a car is sold and registered, it can't be exchanged.

At Lewis & Conger, a housewares store, several portable bars were returned. "No," said one man, "I didn't even use it New Year's Eve. What? Well, how should I know why it smells of bourbon?"

SOMETHING CALLED a "deede" cap was returned by an indignant woman. A "deede" cap, it turns out, is for women who want to hide their own hair when it's up in curlers. The cap fits over the crown of the head and on the front it has real bangs or curls.

This particular woman who returned the item was brunette. Why, she demanded to know, had her husband bought her a "deede" with blond bangs?

At the Wing & Fin Pet Center, it was reported that most of what they call "dry" (or inanimate) merchandise returned is returned for reasons of size.

"You'd be surprised," a man said, "how many people will buy party collars or bathrobes or even cocktail coats for their animals without knowing their size."

That's exactly what the man said. He also said that in returns of "live" merchandise, puppies and kittens predominate.

"When this happens," the man explained, "it's usually because somebody was over-enthusiastic in planning a surprise. They didn't consult the woman who would have to take care of the pet.

"Fish? For some reason, we get no returns of fish at all. But you'd be surprised how many alligators are returned. I guess they come as a shock to some people."

U. S.-Made Plane To Be in Service

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—An American-made plane has been cleared for service by an Indian government airline which plans to operate it to Canton in Communist China.

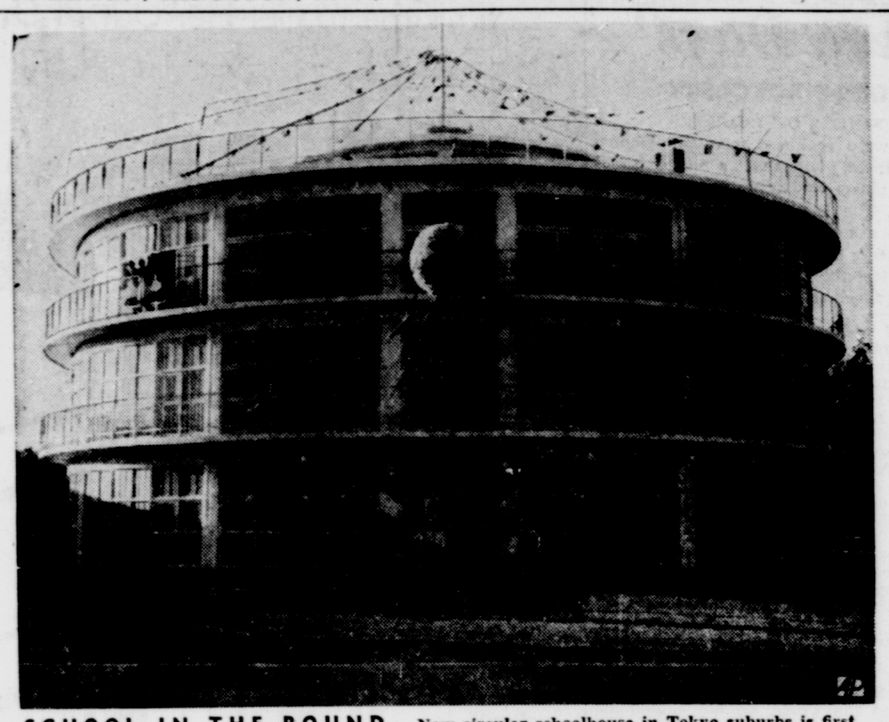

In selling ships to foreign governments, the United States normally seeks assurances they will not be used for trade with Communist ports where U. S. cargo vessels may not go.

Secretary of State Dulles, however, yesterday granted an export license for the super Constellation without requiring that India abandon plans for flights to Canton. A department spokesman said India had pledged the plane would not be sold or transferred to any foreign sources without a U. S. okay.

The Lockheed plane, now at Burbank, Calif., is one of three built for India. They are fully equipped with radar and electronic equipment. The State Department said export permits for the other two planes will be issued when they are ready.

Perry Enthused About Greenville, Clean Community

Alderman Samuel Perry, home from a trip to the southland, said he spent an enjoyable tour of Greenville, S. C., inspecting municipal facilities at the invitation of officials in the community of 60,000 inhabitants.

"It is one of the cleanest and most hospitable communities I've ever been in," said the representative of the Fifth Ward in conversing with a reporter.

PERRY SAID he visited the office of Mayor Kenneth Cass, had a long conference with City Manager Gerald Shaw, and enjoyed a whole afternoon's tour with J. F. Goodwin, assistant superintendent of public works.

About rubbish disposal, Perry said the southern community uses the land-fill method on a 184-acre tract near the city line, operating with two men and machines that dig long trenches, which take care daily of 135 truckloads of all waste, including garbage.

Perry observed that penalties for infractions of Greenville law were in the form of sentences on work gangs. Prisoners must labor for the municipality, he said, wearing the old style striped suits once common in penal institutions.

THE OCCASION of his 800-mile trip to Greenville was a visit to Donaldson Air Force Base to spend some time with A/2c and Mrs. Kenneth Kouhoupt and their five-month old son, Kenneth. Airman Kouhoupt is a son of Mrs. Perry. Also on the trip were Mrs. Nicholas Lasher, 12 Stuyvesant street, mother of Mrs. Kouhoupt, and her son Vincent.

Dr. Bigelow Dies

Peekskill, Jan. 7 (AP)—Dr. Maurice A. Bigelow, professor emeritus at Columbia University who wrote books on hygiene and sex education, died yesterday in Peekskill Hospital. He was 82. Bigelow, who recently had lived in Cortland, was a native of Milford Center, Ohio, and was educated at Ohio Wesleyan, Northwestern and Harvard Universities. He started his teaching career as a biology instructor at Wesleyan, and joined the Columbia faculty in 1894. Bigelow was named a full professor there in 1907.

THE RUMINATOR

By HUMPHREY B. NEILL

A Column of Contrary Opinion

In all the hullabaloo over the predicted prosperity which lies ahead (according to published comments of VIP'S, pundits, and lesser mortals) we might take time out to inquire how much further our liberties are to be encroached upon.

Here are some thoughts that occur to the Ruminator as the New Year opens.

I feel a slight chill as I look forward into 1955.

I shiver at the ponderous predictions of our materialistic welfare—which seems to me to be rather heavily weighted with liberalistic fanfare.

WHERE DO YOU FIND, in our mass-circulated newspapers and magazines, stimulating or inspiring editorials or articles testifying to the noble edifice of the free-enterprise system which HAS MADE AMERICA GREAT?

I've had my fill of "peaceful coexistence"—which you bump into on every page. I'd like a little old-fashioned rugged individualism and patriotic nationalism mixed in with my reading. I'm fed up with liberalism as a steady diet; it's too mealy mouthed. Libertarianism gives you something to chew on, but you have to hunt to unearth it.

For 1955, give me the good old American spirit of individual persistence, and the coexistence idea will take care of itself.

LET ME ASK you this: Why is it that the liberal, or left-wing, attitudes and writings are becoming so widely popularized? How can it be that under a Republican administration leftist tendencies remain in vogue?

I'll leave it to you to find the answer. However, it was encourageing to come across a book review in the Wall Street Journal a few days concerning the "Life of John Stuart Mill" . . . and to receive in the mail the first of a series of pamphlets stoutly defending the capitalist system by Major L. L. B. Angas.

Referring to the former, William H. Chamberlin's discussion of Mill—who Chamberlin says might be called "Mr. Liberty"—was vastly refreshing when so many non-fiction reviews are canted leftward (and when so many right-wing books get scant attention). You will like this quotation from John Stuart Mill's mighty Essay on Liberty:

> "Mankind are greater gainers by suffering each other to live as seems good to themselves than by compelling each to live as seems good to the rest."

As a reminder to you and to me to re-read Mill's Essay on Liberty, the reviewer added this thought from Mill: "The worth of a state, in the long run, is the worth of individuals composing it."

IT TAKES A STOUT heart these days to robustly and fearlessly defend the capitalist system with apologies. I for one congratulate Major Angas for undertaking it. This writer happens to know how much time and effort he has put in, and is putting in, to present irrefutable arguments that will reveal in: glaring lights the illusions and delusions of socialism (and communism).

The first in a series of pamphlets by Major Angas is titled "Capitalist Counter Attack" (A Capitalist Manifesto). After enumerating the seven kinds of socialism, you are carried at once to the root evil of socialism; namely, the illusion that "profits are immoral." (Socialists assert that profits can only be made by (1) underpaying workers, or by (2) over-charging consumers, the author tells us.)

The nub here is the common ignorance concerning what "profit" really is; thus the lack of understanding of a "profits system."

MAJOR ANGAS THEN tellingly "gives the lie" to popular Marxist slogans, such as the anti-capitalist one: "Production is for profit, not for use." As the author says, "the first part of the statement is obviously true; the second half . . . a Big Lie." As every manufacturer knows only too well, produced goods MUST be useful if profits are to be made. Mr. and Mrs. Consumer will quickly kill the profits if they cannot, or do not wish to, use the products in question.

The pamphlet continues with an exposition of "counter attacks" that cannot fail to convince the reader of leftward leanings that he is heading toward self-destruction; that he should turn back toward the "right." I shall hope later to bring you further information on this series of pamphlets which, I believe, can do much to PRESERVE OUR LIBERTIES.

Anglo Rail Strike Has Been Suspended

London, Jan. 7 (AP)—Britons breathed easier today after union leaders supended a call for a nationwide railroad strike which could have crippled the nation's booming economy. But union Secretary "Big Jim" Campbell warned a new strike call would go out if further wage talks are not satisfactory.

The suspension of the walkout was announced last night following a long government-called conference between officials of the 400,000-strong National Union of Railwaymen (NUR) and the British Transport Commission, which runs the state-owned lines. The walkout had been scheduled for Sunday midnight.

Union officials said the transport chiefs agreed that "wage rates would be adjusted" and that "there would be no haggling."

The pay scale for British railwaymen now ranges from the equivalent of $17.06 to $24.36 a week.

If the movies on TV get much older the cowboys will be riding dinosaurs.

Careful Attention Is Needed For Proper Check-Writing

New York, Jan. 7 (AP)—Take another look at that batch of canceled checks you just received from your bank. That gift check you doled out at Christmas may have been even more generous than you imagined.

Instead of a $10 check made out to "cash" and sent to a friend, you may now have in your possession, properly canceled and paid by your bank, a $100 check signed by "Cash Johnson," a well-versed check swindler.

IN SHORT, you may have been one of the thousands of Americans victimized by a check forger. More than 50 million dollars are stolen every year by check swindlers, and the responsibility for the loss, in most cases, is borne by the writer of the check. SOUND SLUM BUILDINGS

The Supreme Court has ruled against an owner of a small department store in the slum area of Washington, D. C. He had protested that condemning his store in an area earmarked for clearance would violate his constitutional rights. The unanimous decision of the court is, in effect, support of authority to condemn not only slums but areas and conditions that tend to produce slums. It is also a legislative rap on the knuckles of those who would resist, hinder or stop slum clearance and redevelopment because their own building is "safe" in an area of hovels.

Whether an individual should lose his holdings because they are surrounded by property in need of improvement is a knotty problem. California has a new law, soon to be tested, which states that "economic dislocation and disuse of land is a proper basis for condemnation." Thus any man operating a business in a non-slum building, in a slum area, knows he is facing possible seizure by the city. He must assume the responsibility of the risk he is taking.

Property owners are given just compensation for their loss whenever their holdings are seized by law. However, a man who loses his livelihood because his property is thus seized often faces more than the loss of his property. He may have lost his whole business future. This is the grim problem facing courts throughout the country. Slum dwellers cannot be deprived of the opportunity of new housing because of the individual. But the individual is protesting the unnatural sacrifice demanded.

Is it not possible that in city planning for reclamation, businesses operated in approved buildings can become a part of the new plans? Could not such planning include re-establishment of such businessmen?

It is a harsh criticism for a city housing commission to bear, if in the much needed improvement of a slum area it is accused of steam-rolling the individual. Common sense and fairness are needed in all these matters.

CHRISTMAS FOR ANIMALS

One group to whom Christmas came this year as it rarely does, is that of the animals, those either with poor owners or no homes at all. The Anti-Cruelty Society of America this year remembered these for Christmas, distributing to the horses owned by poor folk, food, blankets and shoes where needed. A Christmas dinner for a horse was provided, consisting of a bushel of mixed grain, carrots and hay.

What was done for the dog and cat waifs is not stated. Their plight is not necessary. Almost all were once owned by some one who moved away or ceased to care for them, and tossed them out on the highway, indifferent to their fate. Yet for a trifling sum a veterinarian would put them away painlessly, so that they would not have to face a life of starvation and torment.

It is a pity that the Christmas spirit, which touches even the worst of us in the holiday season, does not move those who come in contact with homeless animals.

Why fret when dreams fail to come true? We ought to be glad the nightmares don't.

RECORD SLED

Air Force Lieutenant Colonel John Paul Stapp recently broke his own land speed record by more than 200 miles per hour. On a rocket powered sled he traveled 632 m.p.h.; his old record was 421 m.p.h.

Colonel Stapp's endeavors in the field of speed on land are more than an attempt to establish records. The data gathered from his tests will save the lives of air men who encounter similar situations while speeding through the skies.

The tests are not easy on a man. They subject a man's body to unusual strains and tensions. It takes real courage and dedication to duty for an officer to subject himself to the tests in the interest of science and air safety. Colonel Stapp has performed a valuable service to his country and to the air force.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

THE BUSINESS OF POLITICS

When kings were real and men and women trembled before them, politics was a fine art practised within the palace and was designed to gain the king's favor. The ladies played at it, sometimes to advance a husband or a son or to make a profitable marriage for a daughter. Occasionally great statesmen lost their heads in this operation or were poisoned which must have been pleasanter for them.

The kings and lords and barons, etc., delighted to go to war which was a comparatively small operation, fraught with great heroism and excitement. To the victor, the wars brought loot of all kinds, gold and silver, pretty women, territory, power. The king, as a rule, sat in his palace counting his possessions while the peasants lived like the pigs they raised, and whatever there was of a middle class hoped that they would not be taxed or borrowed out of existence. Sometimes when a king was hard up, he confiscated whatever he wanted or cut the edges off his coins, thus becoming rich.

Then the people asserted themselves and the kings went the way of all flesh, except a few like the Queen of England, the Mikado of Japan and the King of Kings of Ethiopia. The people took over the governments of most countries and produced democracies, republics, dictatorships and people's republics. And the voice of the people became the voice of God, which is politically a sound statement but otherwise sacrilegious.

The people, on the whole, do not rule much better than the kings did, although they do not use their daughters as political pawns and they do not poison each other to get elected. Sometimes they do use the mechanism of revolution which often is advertised as a means for the extension of human liberty but usually is a mechanism for a gang shift. Generally speaking, in most countries, the people do not really care who governs them, so long as the taxes are low and the currency substantial.

But every once in a while, a figure appears who stirs popular imagination. Mussolini, for instance, knew how to stir the Italians by insulting everybody, including them. I once saw Orson Welles play Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar" with all the characters dressed in modern street clothes. Orson Welles had himself fixed up to look like Mussolini and I could well imagine a politician like that make a speech which would send the mob out to break windows and heads and whatever was around.

I never quite understand the hypnotic powers of Hitler over the highly-cultured Germans, but it is always possible for a people in despair to accept the toughest guy just to see where it gets them. After all, the refined and artistic French accepted a foreigner, Napoleon, to give them an Empire and they never recovered from him. These strong men used the people who could have cut them down, and eventually did when the tide of popularity turned, as it always does.

On the whole, in most countries most of the people are really not interested in all the maneuvers among the politicians. That is why they prefer comic strips, sports pages, and a good juicy murder to the writings of pundits or the speeches of the learned. This is as true in one country as in another. Occasionally an issue arises that stirs the people, like beer in the 1932 campaign; or a personality arises that stirs their imagination, like the popularity of General Eisenhower in the 1952 campaign.

But they soon subside and turn back to their daily affairs, to Aunt Dora and Cousin Bessie and the lousy bridge game that was played on the night that Bill insisted on watching the fights on television. After all, is life to be nothing but the difficulties of Mendes-France and the higher criticism of Walter Lippmann? What about love in the Spring and the twinkling eyes of a daughter when she decides to marry her choice, willy-nilly?

Kings or people—politics is a play for power, whereas the people generally want to be left to their own devices which they know they can manage comfortably if no one interferes. Perhaps that is why our two ex-Presidents are more favorably regarded now that they are out of office than they were when they mightily bestrode the White House.

"MOTORIZED" TRACTION

A common cause of pain in the neck and shoulder or in the neck and upper arm is pressure on the nerve roots in the upper spine from herniation of a cervical disc, the little cushions between the bones of the spinal column. This pain can result from injury to the neck or from chronic or repeated strain on the spine. Sometimes the patient is quite aware when the injury occurs such as a "whiplash" injury of the neck suffered by riders in a car that has been struck forcibly from the front or rear; sometimes it may occur when the head is turned quickly or when turning over in bed. But more often the patient does not recall any particular injury but has had repeated "stiff necks" or "cricks" in the neck over a period of years which show that the upper back and neck are not too strong.

The usual treatment for cases such as this who have severe pain for a considerable length of time has been surgical operation, but now we read of a comparatively simple procedure which has brought excellent results in 22 of 27 patients on whom it was used. The remaining five patients finally had to have an operation to get relief from pain.

"All patients in this series were considered candidates for surgical intervention in view of the severity and duration of their pain. All had received conservative treatment consisting of analgesics (pain-killing drugs) — heat and massage, and local injections with Novacaine; many had had cervical traction of 6 to 10 pounds (weights placed so that the neck is pulled upwards) without results."

I am quoting Dr. Henry Shenkin in The Journal of the American Medical Association who goes on to describe a new type of traction used in these cases by which a force of up to 50 pounds could be applied to the patient without unreasonable distress.

"The apparatus is a motor-driven mechanism which places the desired pull of up to fifty pounds on a head halter for a period of five seconds and then releases the traction for five seconds. This traction is maintained for one hour and then the patient is permitted to rest for 15 minutes. In these patients the traction was kept up for from 12 to 14 hours daily, usually for periods of four to five days, gradually increasing the pressure from a beginning of 25 pounds. When the most benefit has been obtained, support is given the neck by means of a leather collar or a cervical (upper back) brace for a period of from four to six weeks."

When we realize that all of these patients would usually have had operations for relief of pain, is very good news to hear that so many achieved excellent results by means of this "motorized" traction.

Time to Get Her Out of Drydock

Edson's Washington News Notebook

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington — (NEA) — The second Commission on Organization of the Executive Branch of the Federal Government, headed by ex-President Herbert Hoover, will file the first of its new series of reports to Congress on Jan. 10.

From then on, the reports will start dropping at the rate of one every week or two, until the Commission completes its recommendations on the work of 14 special task forces that have been studying government methods for nearly two years.

The commission is scheduled to go out of business May 31. There is now no plan to ask for an extension of its life unless Congress should ask the commission to help draft new legislation to carry out some of the recommendations of its reports. The commission is prepared to draft these new laws if the Congress asks for them, but the drafts will not be included in the reports.

The Second Hoover Commission is much broader in its scope than the first. The original commission dealt only with reorganization within the separate executive departments and agencies — State, Agriculture, Defense and so on. The idea was to put their operations on a more efficient and economical basis.

OF 273 RECOMMENDATIONS made by the first Hoover Commission, 196, or 72 per cent were put into effect. Savings of some $4 billion a year were estimated as a result of these actions.

The second Hoover Commission deals more with broad government functions and policies. These studies cut across departmental and agency organization lines.

As a result, the recommendations of the second Hoover Commisson will probably encompass the greatest overhauling any government ever got.

In the words of one commission staff member, this will be a great demonstration of the way a democracy can adjust to new conditions and improve its procedures and policies. If some of the criticisms of government practices to be made in the new series of Hoover reports and recommendations were to be made in a country like Soviet Russia, many bureaucrats might be sent to Sibera and some might be taken out and shot.

WHILE THE HOOVER COMMISSION was created by Congress and reports to Congress, many of its recommendations can be effected by executive order of the President. Under existing law, the President may send reorganization plans to Congress to carry out these recommendations. If these plans are not rejected by either House of Congress within 60 days, they take effect automatically.

This provision of law expires in April, however. There is some debate in Congress as to whether it should be extended. Many congressmen feel it smacks too much of legislation by negative action.

The first report which the Hoover Commission will file covers government paperwork management. It will be in two parts. The first will deal with simplification of paperwork within government. The second part, possibly to be filed later, will cover simplification of paperwork and records required of business.

In succeeding weeks will come these four reports, though not necessarily in this order:

Government legal services and procedures.

Civil service and government personnel management.

Medical services of 60 government agencies.

Government budgeting, accounting and auditing practices.

AFTER THESE WILL COME seven more in undetermined order:

Government lending and insurance agencies.

Foreign economic operations of the government.

Procurement methods, particularly military supply.

Use and disposal of government surplus property.

Government real property holdings.

Government subsistence services of food and clothing.

The last two reports, and the most complicated of them all, will probably be filed just before the May 31 deadline:

U. S. water resources and government power policy. This one will probably start a controversy that will go on for a year or more.

Business organization of the Department of Defense. This task force has four subcommittees on business-type enterprises of the armed services, research programs, personnel management and transport.

Eisenhower Address Considered Tops Among Political Speeches Before Congress

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 7—President Eisenhower's message covered the waterfront. He urged that something be done about everything but he didn't say when. He is for peace, prosperity, better defense, lower taxes next year, and he even thinks "the arts" and culture should come in for a bit of governmental recognition.

It was perhaps the best political speech ever delivered in the form of an opening address to Congress. It took the wind out of the sails of the "left wing" Democrats, including those who believe in a "welfare state." What could they advocate now? And it was worded with sufficient caution and alternative generalities to keep the conservatives in both parties from being too much alarmed.

Yet it wasn't a middle-of-the-road speech in any sense. Positive recommendations for social-welfare legislation were accompanied by rather definite pronouncements about the need for prudence and economical handling of the nation's finances.

After hearing the message, Representative Francis E. Walter of Pennsylvania, Democrat, quipped that the speech "sounded like he (Ike) is a candidate on both tickets." This describes the political overtones of the address, though it doesn't necessarily confirm the bipartisan character of the recommendations. For many of the proposals will split the Democratic as well as the Republican party, and the final votes will show considerable divergence within both parties.

The comments afterward from the Democrats were characteristic. They said about what political opponents always say—"well delivered," "general," or "must-wait-for-details." Nobody on the Democratic side waxed wildly enthusiastic — and the Republicans gave it the praise their party leader is expected to be given on such an occasion. They all saw the political implications of the message.

The President said something on almost every subject except "civil rights" legislation. His recommendations showed evidence of their having been worked on for a long time. In many respects, the address was far better organized and better phrased than any legislative message President Eisenhower has sent to Congress.

Lots of controversies are imbedded in the general phrases of the address. Even if Congress were disposed to act on the principal topics, there are enough issues in them to keep both Houses busy not just for one session but for several sessions.

The President was well advised when, in somewhat subtle but nevertheless significant fashion, he expressed the hope that partisanship would not be abandoned merely on international policy, as he felt that there should be cooperation wherever the good of the country is involved. This is but another way of warning the Democrats that he hasn't forgotten their campaign pledges to uphold his policies. The opposition party is somewhat embarrassed by that blanket promise and is trying now to qualify it by saying the President will be supported when he is right and opposed when he's wrong. That's a loophole for partisan attacks and dissent, but Mr. Eisenhower nevertheless, by mobilizing public opinion, can put his opponents in a hole if they do finally succumb to the partisan temptation of opposition for opposition's sake.

There were some Democrats who said publicly the speech by the President sounded "New Dealish," and there were Republicans who said the same thing privately. Actually, the Eisenhower address shows the strength of modern political propaganda which seeks to promise the moon, "because, if you don't, the other fellow will." The appeal to materialism apparently is still the dominant note to be struck—and it didn't start with the New Deal either.

So much of the present-day political combat is waged over phrases and slogans that, when a President with a few good ghost writers comes up with a speech that outdoes the masterpieces of any of the New Deal or Fair Deal ghost writers of the past, it tends to disconcert the "opposition." To strive for the support of the maximum number of groups in the electorate is good politics, especially when the time lag between promise and performance is certain to be somewhat lengthy and beset by all sorts of amendments and alternative plans which at a moment's notice can be interjected by the Democrats as "in the public interest."

Politically, Mr. Eisenhower took the right tack for 1956—if he's thinking about the presidential contest which is less than eighteen months away. But lots of things can happen in that interval, and the Democrats have the advantage of being able to wait till the crucial moments of next year to appraise how much has been accomplished and what has been left undone.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

George Boothby was a Western Union operator who handled the press-file from one of the early military camps in the Adirondacks as the United States fudged colser and closer to a war in which we had no business.

When a New York division sailed for France in 1917, Boothby went along as correspondent for the World. He did well and came home with a good reputation.

In January, 1943, George was down and out. He couldn't get any kind of job until an old friend of the war days sent him in at the World-Telegram. The job was little better than that of copy-boy, but it took George off the streets. He stuck it out from January to October and then drifted. Lee Wood, the executive editor, does not remember him at all. Some people in the city room recall him faintly. He died in August, 1945 and the brief obits reported that he had been in publicity.

Boothby's greatest exploit was a success that haunted him all his days.

In the spring of 1920, Donald Henderson Clarke, a guy, bibulous but competent and absolutely ethical member of a very superior corps of New York reporters, drew an inside tip on the impending surrender of Nick Arnstein, a con-man and tubworker, or seagoing poker-player. Arnstein had either had a part in the theft of a great mass of securities or had been dealt in as a middleman.

Arnstein was a stylish fellow, married to Fanny Brice, then playing Ziegfeld's roof, she was supposed to be getting $2,500 a week. Her theme song, "My Man," was popularly believed to be a cry from her heart, but coincidence played a part there. The song actually came from Paris. However, Fanny apparently was nuts about Arnstein and when she moaned, "—for whatever my man is, I am his—forever, more!" The audience and the wider public bawled with the pathos of it all.

Arnstein's lawyer was William J. Fallon, "the great mouthpiece" of Gene Fowler's first successful portrayal of a buzzard as an angel. Fallon was a shyster who was to die a bum, abandoned and betrayed just as he had abandoned and betrayed his loyal wife. But he was "handsome" to the eye and an impudent drunken rogue who beguiled judges by his very gall in court.

Don Clarke hid out with Arnstein, Fanny, Fallon and other picturesque characters while Fallon dickered with the District attorney for a safe-conduct to the old criminal courts where the D. A.'s office was. Fallon finally got an agreement that Nicky would be allowed to walk in, put up $50,000 bond, and walk out.

By coincidence or design, Fallon, driving the party in a touring car with no top, fell in at the head of the annual New York police parade and drove past the reviewing stand where Red Mike Hylan, the mayor, and Dick Enright, the commissioner, were standing under plug hats to take the salute. Fowler says Fallon did not realize that the parade was on and horned into the lead by accident. My hazy memory is that Arnstein tried to stand up and wave his cap to Hylan and Enright and that Fanny and Boothby pulled him down. My further recollection is that when they reached the criminal courts, hard by police headquarters, the most wanted man had to drive three time around the building, passing the Bridge of Sighs and the Tombs on each circuit, before Fallon could find a door that wasn't locked.

It was a gorgeous coup, anyway, and Hylan and Enright, who were stuffy characters detested by reporters, got a great going-over.

Don Clarke, of the World, had drawn the assignment for several reasons beginning with his exceptional ability as a reporter and writer. Moreover, he had a way with theatrical and underworld people and a high boiling point.

This time, however, his dreams finally outnumbered him and Don phoned the World to ask that some friend keep an eye open while he got some sleep. He had been holed up for days and had a sneaking hunch that Fallon was about to take Arnstein downtown.

"So," Don wrote a few weeks ago, "I toddled down to the old Opera Cafe and phoned. An office boy answered. The Boothby was on the phone. At some discomfort to myself I had gotten him his first job with the World. He was very careful to see that I was not awakened.

"I later told George I hoped he would live to be very old because it would be torture having to live with himself. But, of course, I was all wet not to keep myself in shape for the story."

Charlie Bayer, the inventor of Borden's "Elsie the Cow," was one of our company then. He agreed with a general opinion that this triumph was the sorriest success that ever plagued a man in our craft and that Don Clarke was a master and a gallant colleague who would always give a bug-eyed cub or anyone else everything he got on any story.

SOUND SLUM BUILDINGS

The Supreme Court has ruled against an owner of a small department store in the slum area of Washington, D. C. He had protested that condemning his store in an area earmarked for clearance would violate his constitutional rights. The unanimous decision of the court is, in effect, support of authority to condemn not only slums but areas and conditions that tend to produce slums. It is also a legislative rap on the knuckles of those who would resist, hinder or stop slum clearance and redevelopment because their own building is "safe" in an area of hovels.

Whether an individual should lose his holdings because they are surrounded by property in need of improvement is a knotty problem. California has a new law, soon to be tested, which states that "economic dislocation and disuse of land is a proper basis for condemnation." Thus any man operating a business in a non-slum building, in a slum area, knows he is facing possible seizure by the city. He must assume the responsibility of the risk he is taking.

Property owners are given just compensation for their loss whenever their holdings are seized by law. However, a man who loses his livelihood because his property is thus seized often faces more than the loss of his property. He may have lost his whole business future. This is the grim problem facing courts throughout the country. Slum dwellers cannot be deprived of the opportunity of new housing because of the individual. But the individual is protesting the unnatural sacrifice demanded.

Is it not possible that in city planning for reclamation, businesses operated in approved buildings can become a part of the new plans? Could not such planning include re-establishment of such businessmen?

It is a harsh criticism for a city housing commission to bear, if in the much needed improvement of a slum area it is accused of steam-rolling the individual. Common sense and fairness are needed in all these matters.

CHRISTMAS FOR ANIMALS

One group to whom Christmas came this year as it rarely does, is that of the animals, those either with poor owners or no homes at all. The Anti-Cruelty Society of America this year remembered these for Christmas, distributing to the horses owned by poor folk, food, blankets and shoes where needed. A Christmas dinner for a horse was provided, consisting of a bushel of mixed grain, carrots and hay.

What was done for the dog and cat waifs is not stated. Their plight is not necessary. Almost all were once owned by some one who moved away or ceased to care for them, and tossed them out on the highway, indifferent to their fate. Yet for a trifling sum a veterinarian would put them away painlessly, so that they would not have to face a life of starvation and torment.

It is a pity that the Christmas spirit, which touches even the worst of us in the holiday season, does not move those who come in contact with homeless animals.

Why fret when dreams fail to come true? We ought to be glad the nightmares don't.

RECORD SLED

Air Force Lieutenant Colonel John Paul Stapp recently broke his own land speed record by more than 200 miles per hour. On a rocket powered sled he traveled 632 m.p.h.; his old record was 421 m.p.h.

Colonel Stapp's endeavors in the field of speed on land are more than an attempt to establish records. The data gathered from his tests will save the lives of air men who encounter similar situations while speeding through the skies.

The tests are not easy on a man. They subject a man's body to unusual strains and tensions. It takes real courage and dedication to duty for an officer to subject himself to the tests in the interest of science and air safety. Colonel Stapp has performed a valuable service to his country and to the air force.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

THE BUSINESS OF POLITICS

When kings were real and men and women trembled before them, politics was a fine art practised within the palace and was designed to gain the king's favor. The ladies played at it, sometimes to advance a husband or a son or to make a profitable marriage for a daughter. Occasionally great statesmen lost their heads in this operation or were poisoned which must have been pleasanter for them.

The kings and lords and barons, etc., delighted to go to war which was a comparatively small operation, fraught with great heroism and excitement. To the victor, the wars brought loot of all kinds, gold and silver, pretty women, territory, power. The king, as a rule, sat in his palace counting his possessions while the peasants lived like the pigs they raised, and whatever there was of a middle class hoped that they would not be taxed or borrowed out of existence. Sometimes when a king was hard up, he confiscated whatever he wanted or cut the edges off his coins, thus becoming rich.

Then the people asserted themselves and the kings went the way of all flesh, except a few like the Queen of England, the Mikado of Japan and the King of Kings of Ethiopia. The people took over the governments of most countries and produced democracies, republics, dictatorships and people's republics. And the voice of the people became the voice of God, which is politically a sound statement but otherwise sacrilegious.

The people, on the whole, do not rule much better than the kings did, although they do not use their daughters as political pawns and they do not poison each other to get elected. Sometimes they do use the mechanism of revolution which often is advertised as a means for the extension of human liberty but usually is a mechanism for a gang shift. Generally speaking, in most countries, the people do not really care who governs them, so long as the taxes are low and the currency substantial.

But every once in a while, a figure appears who stirs popular imagination. Mussolini, for instance, knew how to stir the Italians by insulting everybody, including them. I once saw Orson Welles play Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar" with all the characters dressed in modern street clothes. Orson Welles had himself fixed up to look like Mussolini and I could well imagine a politician like that make a speech which would send the mob out to break windows and heads and whatever was around.

I never quite understand the hypnotic powers of Hitler over the highly-cultured Germans, but it is always possible for a people in despair to accept the toughest guy just to see where it gets them. After all, the refined and artistic French accepted a foreigner, Napoleon, to give them an Empire and they never recovered from him. These strong men used the people who could have cut them down, and eventually did when the tide of popularity turned, as it always does.

On the whole, in most countries most of the people are really not interested in all the maneuvers among the politicians. That is why they prefer comic strips, sports pages, and a good juicy murder to the writings of pundits or the speeches of the learned. This is as true in one country as in another. "MOTORIZED" TRACTION

A common cause of pain in the neck and shoulder or in the neck and upper arm is pressure on the nerve roots in the upper spine from herniation of a cervical disc, the little cushions between the bones of the spinal column. This pain can result from injury to the neck or from chronic or repeated strain on the spine. Sometimes the patient is quite aware when the injury occurs such as a "whiplash" injury of the neck suffered by riders in a car that has been struck forcibly from the front or rear; sometimes it may occur when the head is turned quickly or when turning over in bed. The usual treatment for cases such as this who have severe pain for a considerable length of time has been surgical operation, but now we read of a comparatively simple procedure which has brought excellent results in 22 of 27 patients on whom it was used. The remaining five patients finally had to have an operation to get relief from pain.

"All patients in this series were considered candidates for surgical intervention in view of the severity and duration of their pain. All had received conservative treatment consisting of analgesics (pain-killing drugs) — heat and massage, and local injections with Novacaine; many had had cervical traction of 6 to 10 pounds (weights placed so that the neck is pulled upwards) without results."

I am quoting Dr. Henry Shenkin in The Journal of the American Medical Association who goes on to describe a new type of traction used in these cases by which a force of up to 50 pounds could be applied to the patient without unreasonable distress.

"The apparatus is a motor-driven mechanism which places the desired pull of up to fifty pounds on a head halter for a period of five seconds and then releases the traction for five seconds. This traction is maintained for one hour and then the patient is permitted to rest for 15 minutes. In these patients the traction was kept up for from 12 to 14 hours daily, usually for periods of four to five days, gradually increasing the pressure from a beginning of 25 pounds. When the most benefit has been obtained, support is given the neck by means of a leather collar or a cervical (upper back) brace for a period of from four to six weeks."

When we realize that all of these patients would usually have had operations for relief of pain, is very good news to hear that so many achieved excellent results by means of this "motorized" traction.

As a result, the recommendations of the second Hoover Commisson will probably encompass the greatest overhauling any government ever got.

In the words of one commission staff member, this will be a great demonstration of the way a democracy can adjust to new conditions and improve its procedures and policies. If some of the criticisms of government practices to be made in the new series of Hoover reports and recommendations were to be made in a country like Soviet Russia, many bureaucrats might be sent to Sibera and some might be taken out and shot.

WHILE THE HOOVER COMMISSION was created by Congress and reports to Congress, many of its recommendations can be effected by executive order of the President. Under existing law, the President may send reorganization plans to Congress to carry out these recommendations. If these plans are not rejected by either House of Congress within 60 days, they take effect automatically.

This provision of law expires in April, however. There is some debate in Congress as to whether it should be extended. Many congressmen feel it smacks too much of legislation by negative action.

The first report which the Hoover Commission will file covers government paperwork management. It will be in two parts. The first will deal with simplification of paperwork within government. The second part, possibly to be filed later, will cover simplification of paperwork and records required of business.

In succeeding weeks will come these four reports, though not necessarily in this order:

Government legal services and procedures.

Civil service and government personnel management.

Medical services of 60 government agencies.

Government budgeting, accounting and auditing practices.

AFTER THESE WILL COME seven more in undetermined order:

Government lending and insurance agencies.

Foreign economic operations of the government.

Procurement methods, particularly military supply.

Use and disposal of government surplus property.

Government real property holdings.

Government subsistence services of food and clothing.

The last two reports, and the most complicated of them all, will probably be filed just before the May 31 deadline:

U. S. water resources and government power policy. This one will probably start a controversy that will go on for a year or more.

Business organization of the Department of Defense. This task force has four subcommittees on business-type enterprises of the armed services, research programs, personnel management and transport.

Eisenhower Address Considered Tops Among Political Speeches Before Congress

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 7—President Eisenhower's message covered the waterfront. He urged that something be done about everything but he didn't say when. He is for peace, prosperity, better defense, lower taxes next year, and he even thinks "the arts" and culture should come in for a bit of governmental recognition.

It was perhaps the best political speech ever delivered in the form of an opening address to Congress. It took the wind out of the sails of the "left wing" Democrats, including those who believe in a "welfare state." What could they advocate now? And it was worded with sufficient caution and alternative generalities to keep the conservatives in both parties from being too much alarmed.

Yet it wasn't a middle-of-the-road speech in any sense. Positive recommendations for social-welfare legislation were accompanied by rather definite pronouncements about the need for prudence and economical handling of the nation's finances.

After hearing the message, Representative Francis E. Walter of Pennsylvania, Democrat, quipped that the speech "sounded like he (Ike) is a candidate on both tickets." This describes the political overtones of the address, though it doesn't necessarily confirm the bipartisan character of the recommendations. For many of the proposals will split the Democratic as well as the Republican party, and the final votes will show considerable divergence within both parties.

The comments afterward from the Democrats were characteristic. They said about what political opponents always say—"well delivered," "general," or "must-wait-for-details." Nobody on the Democratic side waxed wildly enthusiastic — and the Republicans gave it the praise their party leader is expected to be given on such an occasion. They all saw the political implications of the message.

The President said something on almost every subject except "civil rights" legislation. His recommendations showed evidence of their having been worked on for a long time. In many respects, the address was far better organized and better phrased than any legislative message President Eisenhower has sent to Congress.

Lots of controversies are imbedded in the general phrases of the address. Even if Congress were disposed to act on the principal topics, there are enough issues in them to keep both Houses busy not just for one session but for several sessions.

The President was well advised when, in somewhat subtle but nevertheless significant fashion, he expressed the hope that partisanship would not be abandoned merely on international policy, as he felt that there should be cooperation wherever the good of the country is involved. This is but another way of warning the Democrats that he hasn't forgotten their campaign pledges to uphold his policies. The opposition party is somewhat embarrassed by that blanket promise and is trying now to qualify it by saying the President will be supported when he is right and opposed when he's wrong. That's a loophole for partisan attacks and dissent, but Mr. Eisenhower nevertheless, by mobilizing public opinion, can put his opponents in a hole if they do finally succumb to the partisan temptation of opposition for opposition's sake.

There were some Democrats who said publicly the speech by the President sounded "New Dealish," and there were Republicans who said the same thing privately. Actually, the Eisenhower address shows the strength of modern political propaganda which seeks to promise the moon, "because, if you don't, the other fellow will." The appeal to materialism apparently is still the dominant note to be struck—and it didn't start with the New Deal either.

So much of the present-day political combat is waged over phrases and slogans that, when a President with a few good ghost writers comes up with a speech that outdoes the masterpieces of any of the New Deal or Fair Deal ghost writers of the past, it tends to disconcert the "opposition." To strive for the support of the maximum number of groups in the electorate is good politics, especially when the time lag between promise and performance is certain to be somewhat lengthy and beset by all sorts of amendments and alternative plans which at a moment's notice can be interjected by the Democrats as "in the public interest."

Politically, Mr. Eisenhower took the right tack for 1956—if he's thinking about the presidential contest which is less than eighteen months away. But lots of things can happen in that interval, and the Democrats have the advantage of being able to wait till the crucial moments of next year to appraise how much has been accomplished and what has been left undone.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

George Boothby was a Western Union operator who handled the press-file from one of the early military camps in the Adirondacks as the United States fudged colser and closer to a war in which we had no business.

When a New York division sailed for France in 1917, Boothby went along as correspondent for the World. He did well and came home with a good reputation.

In January, 1943, George was down and out. He couldn't get any kind of job until an old friend of the war days sent him in at the World-Telegram. The job was little better than that of copy-boy, but it took George off the streets. He stuck it out from January to October and then drifted. Lee Wood, the executive editor, does not remember him at all. Some people in the city room recall him faintly. He died in August, 1945 and the brief obits reported that he had been in publicity.

Boothby's greatest exploit was a success that haunted him all his days.

In the spring of 1920, Donald Henderson Clarke, a guy, bibulous but competent and absolutely ethical member of a very superior corps of New York reporters, drew an inside tip on the impending surrender of Nick Arnstein, a con-man and tubworker, or seagoing poker-player. Arnstein had either had a part in the theft of a great mass of securities or had been dealt in as a middleman.

Arnstein was a stylish fellow, married to Fanny Brice, then playing Ziegfeld's roof, she was supposed to be getting $2,500 a week. Her theme song, "My Man," was popularly believed to be a cry from her heart, but coincidence played a part there. The song actually came from Paris. However, Fanny apparently was nuts about Arnstein and when she moaned, "—for whatever my man is, I am his—forever, more!" The audience and the wider public bawled with the pathos of it all.

Arnstein's lawyer was William J. Fallon, "the great mouthpiece" of Gene Fowler's first successful portrayal of a buzzard as an angel. Fallon was a shyster who was to die a bum, abandoned and betrayed just as he had abandoned and betrayed his loyal wife. But he was "handsome" to the eye and an impudent drunken rogue who beguiled judges by his very gall in court.

Don Clarke hid out with Arnstein, Fanny, Fallon and other picturesque characters while Fallon dickered with the District attorney for a safe-conduct to the old criminal courts where the D. A.'s office was. Fallon finally got an agreement that Nicky would be allowed to walk in, put up $50,000 bond, and walk out.

By coincidence or design, Fallon, driving the party in a touring car with no top, fell in at the head of the annual New York police parade and drove past the reviewing stand where Red Mike Hylan, the mayor, and Dick Enright, the commissioner, were standing under plug hats to take the salute. Fowler says Fallon did not realize that the parade was on and horned into the lead by accident. My hazy memory is that Arnstein tried to stand up and wave his cap to Hylan and Enright and that Fanny and Boothby pulled him down. My further recollection is that when they reached the criminal courts, hard by police headquarters, the most wanted man had to drive three time around the building, passing the Bridge of Sighs and the Tombs on each circuit, before Fallon could find a door that wasn't locked.

It was a gorgeous coup, anyway, and Hylan and Enright, who were stuffy characters detested by reporters, got a great going-over.

Don Clarke, of the World, had drawn the assignment for several reasons beginning with his execptional ability as a reporter and writer. Moreover, he had a way with theatrical and underworld people and a high boiling point.

This time, however, his dreams finally outnumbered him and Don phoned the World to ask that some friend keep an eye open while he got some sleep. He had been holed up for days and had a sneaking hunch that Fallon was about to take Arnstein downtown.

"So," Don wrote a few weeks ago, "I toddled down to the old Opera Cafe and phoned. An office boy answered. The Boothby was on the phone. At some discomfort to myself I had gotten him his first job with the World. He was very careful to see that I was not awakened.

"I later told George I hoped he would live to be very old because it would be torture having to live with himself. But, of course, I was all wet not to keep myself in shape for the story."

Charlie Bayer, the inventor of Borden's "Elsie the Cow," was one of our company then. He agreed with a general opinion that this triumph was the sorriest success that ever plagued a man in our craft and that Don Clarke was a master and a gallant colleague who would always give a bug-eyed cub or anyone else everything he got on any story.

Amended Social Security Program

January 1 was the first effective date for a number of important provisions in the 1954 Amendments to the Social Security Act. We are desirious that the people in this area should know how they are effected by these changes which were signed into law by the President September 1, 1954. We are submitting a series of articles dealing with each phase of the amended program.

ABOUT SIX MILLION more workers were automatically covered by social security on that date; approximately four million more may be brought under social security on an elective basis. Earnings up to $4,200 received in a year are starting to count toward future benefit payments, and a beneficiary may get all his insurance benefit payments while earning as high as $1,200 yearly. Applications for the new disability "freeze" could be made beginning with the month of January and extending through June 1955.

The largest group of gainfully-employed people in the nation not heretofore covered by social security has now been brought in—the 3.6 million self-employed farm operators. Commencing January 1, these farm operators are covered on the same terms as other self-employed people, except for special provisions under certain conditions for figuring the amount of their net annual earnings.

A CHANGE IN THE OLD requirement that farm workers be regularly employed by one employer means that over two million additional farm employees will start earning social security protection for themselves and their families in 1955. The new provision requires only that the farm hand be paid at least $100 in cash wages in a calendar year by one employer.

About 200,000 more domestic employes in private households are covered by the amended law because of the removal of the earlier requirement that the domestic employe work 24 days in each calendar quarter in any one household. Now the requirement, beginning January 1, is the payment of $50 or more cash wages by one household employer in a calendar quarter.

About 3,500,000 employes of state and local governments, excluded up to now because they are under a retirement system, may now be brought under social security if they elect coverage by a referendum. And members of the clergy, whether employed or self-employed, may come under the law as if they were self-employed persons.

OTHER SELF-EMPLOYED GROUPS covered for the first time by social security as of January 1, 1955, are professional engineers, accountants, architects, and funeral directors.

Of special significance to persons in work which came under social security for the first time on January 1 is a provision in the amended law which will enable those who are newly covered to achieve a fully insured status quickly. By working continuously, they may become insured as early as the second quarter of 1956.

SINCE EARNINGS of newly-covered workers must be averaged from the beginning of 1951, just like earnings of persons already in work covered by social security, their four years of non-covered employment or self-employment would cut down their average monthly earnings for figuring their benefit amount were it not for a special provision in the amended law. This provision, known as the "drop-out," permits the elimination of the four years of non-covered employment. The "drop-out" in effect, places the newly-covered groups in a position comparable to that of the groups that became newly covered in 1951, with respect to the figuring of the benefit amount.

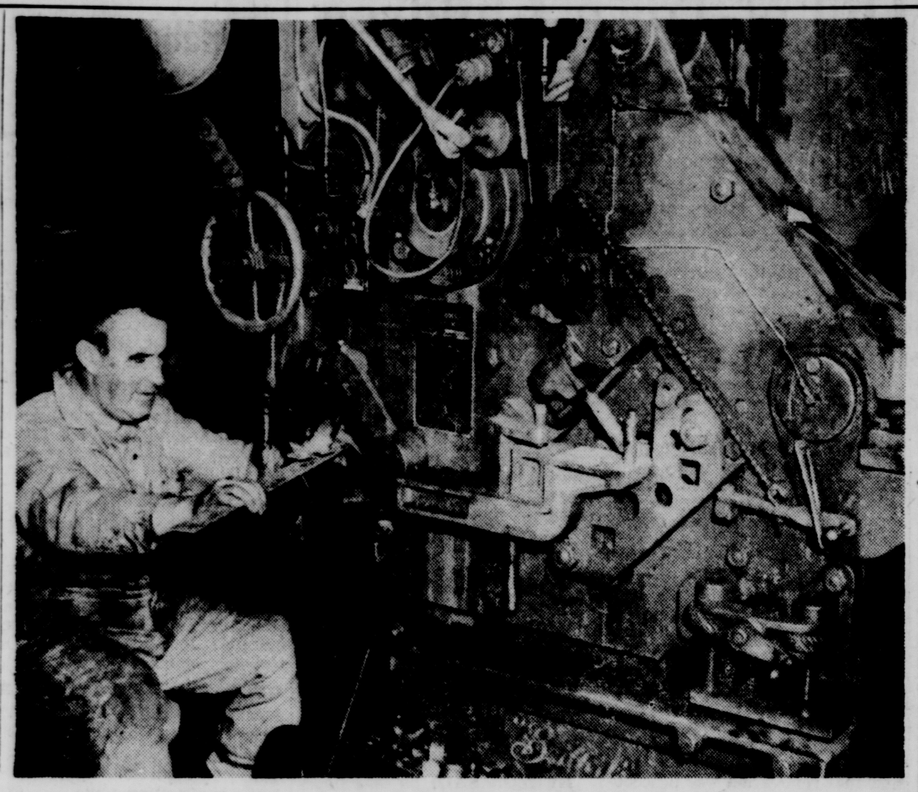

OF SPECIAL IMPORTANCE to persons already on the insurance benefit rolls is the provision affecting the amount of earnings they are permitted to have from work while getting monthly benefit payment checks. Beginning with 1955, such earnings from employment or self-employment (or a combination of the two) may be as much as $1,200 in a year. This replaces a provision in the old law whereby an employed person had to forego one or more months payments if his earnings were more than $75 a month, and a self-employed person getting insurance benefit payments was restricted to $900 earnings in a year. Beneficiaries who could not accept social security checks for certain months under the old law, but who can meet the conditions of the new provision, are advised to get in touch with their social security office.

THE SOCIAL SECURITY Administration also calls attention to the lowering of the age restrictions on earnings by beneficiaries from 75 to 72. On reaching 72, an insured person is now permitted to have earnings of any amount and still get benefit checks each month in the year. This provision goes into effect also at the beginning of 1955, and any person between 72 and 75 who has not claimed his benefits because he has continued to work should file his claim now, even if he plans to keep on working.

As recently as 1951, tuberculosis mortality in the United States was twice as high as it was in 1954, an insurance company's records show.

Local Iron Workers Produce Most Anything You Desire

Kingston iron and steel fabricators possess striking versatility, a check by The Freeman discloses.

You need a fire escape? It can be had. You want ornamental ironwork for your front steps, balconies, etc.? It can be discussed with local experts, designs prepared, the railings fabricated and installed.

You have a broken grate in the fireplace or a broken bicycle pedal? They can be welded.

You need steel bits, bollards, etc.? You want a steel swimming pool? You need a commercial boiler repaired, or your car radiator? Does your ferry need a new steel deck? Does the state need steel markers for its historical sites? What about some steamline pipe hangers? These services and products are available.

LOCAL IRONWORKERS have gone into the ornamental field in rather recent years—the last 10—and hundreds of Kingston and Ulster county homes have been supplied with ingeniously wrought railings.

The oldest firm in the city is the Ashley Welding Machine and Iron Co., Inc., at Henry and Sterling streets, incoporated in 1892 by the late C. P. Ashley. It was originally a plumbing shop and the founder, at the time of his death, was the oldest plumber in the city.

Later the firm entered the welding business, then the structural steel line. About 10 years ago steel fabrication was begun. One of the principal services offered by the firm is the re-tubing and repair of large industrial boilers.

Charles H. Ashley, son of the founder, is president of the company. M. Haefele is sales manager.

THE COMPANY has installed ornamental iron railings in from 400 to 500 homes in the area, Ashley points out. Some of these homes are 50 to 60 miles from Kingston. Among its projects was the installation of railings on 47 porches in a housing development in Newburgh.

The ornamental railing around Our Lady of Fatima Shrine on the Wall street side of St. Joseph's Church was done by Ashley. Another important job was installation of railings on the Jewish Community Center in Ellenville.

According to Haefele, the firm approaches its jobs in steel and iron the way a "carpenter does with wood—whatever the blueprint calls for."

RECENT PROJECTS: Steel for renovation of the Broadway Theater; 11 tons of reinforcing rod for the sub-footings of the proposed wing at Kingston Hospital; bending, welding and installation of radiant heat pipe coils for the Elizabeth A. Horton Memorial Hospital, Middletown; re-tubing of four or five boilers in the Schenectady area; steam line and main steam line pipe hangers for the new IBM plant; miscellaneous steel for Ottaviano and Arborio for the construction of thruway in Kingston area.

Other projects: Construction of steel ramps for the pits at the Grand street plant of IBM; designing and fabrication of metal signs for the U. S. Department of Interior National Parks Service; fabrication of steel historical markers at the Roosevelt Memorial, Hyde Park; fabrication of a steel deck on one of the Newburgh ferries; fabrication of railings for Ulster county highway bridges; steel for electrical transformer sub-station of the Rockland Power and Light Company, Middletown.

ITS EIGHT TRUCKS and five portable welding units are in a position to move anywhere, anytime. It has also done considerable welding on heavy equipment in the area.

R. H. Walthers, PE (professional engineer), who spent 30 years with the Tidewater Oil Company, is structural engineer for the firm. The company's welders are certified by the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. This means they are qualified to handle welding on high pressure steam lines. They are also U. S. Government Licensed Welders.

DeCicco was born in East Kingston, learned the auto business at 15, in 1923 purchased the Kingston Hardware Store on Broadway near St. James street, carrying auto parts as well as hardware. In 1928 he went back to the automobile business for a Long Island firm, in 1930 returning to Saugerties where he established a repair shop, specializing in welding and radiator work. In 1945 he sold it and moved to Kingston where he opened a business in ironwork and radiator repair on Van Deusen street.

DeCicco does both ornamental ironwork and heavy steel fabrication, as well as radiator work.

THE ORIGINAL SHOP became too small and DeCicco purchased an old bakery at 101 Abeel street. This building is now being renovated. It will be used primarily for a new venture—the fabrication of steel ornamental furniture such as tables, chairs, magazine racks, television stands, etc.

"The ornamental furniture market is going to be a big one," DeCicco said. He explained that he anticipated considerable expansion and that the new building has sufficient space to employ 150 men.

DeCicco used to make television antennae and said he would probably resume their fabrication again. Originally, when he first began making antennae, he was able to put out only five a day. Within two weeks, however, the operation had been so streamlined he was able to get out as many as 35 a day.

DeCicco has received orders for ornamental ironwork from as far as Texas, Washington, D. C., and Watertown near the Canadian border.

The firm's biggest field, however, is heavy fabricated steel.

DeCicco also welds and repairs truck bodies and heavy equipment. It handles work for the Kingston City Transportation Corporation and does radiator and frame work for the North American Cement Company.

The company has three trucks and five welding units, three of which are portable. The firm employs nine men.

Associated with DeCicco are James DeCicco, a brother, and Eugene Radel, outside foreman, and Charles DeCicco, a son, who is shop foreman.

LATEST COMER to local steel fabrication is Jay Steel Products, Inc., 37 Mill street, headed by Walter Jeghers and Mike Lucchese. It was established June 1, 1953.

The company specializes in structural steel, ornamental railings, fire escapes, fire doors, steel and aluminum windows, lally columns, reinforcing bars and wire mesh.

It is concentrating particularly on the warehousing end of the business, supplying smaller users in the area. The firm does extensive structural fabrication and a lot of steel stairwork.

Most of its business is with contractors. It is furnishing material for electrical contractors on the new IBM plant construction near Kingston.

JAY STEEL ALSO serves as franchise dealer for metal toilet partitions and storm windows. Sketches for the toilet partitions are submitted and the partitions assembled from materials in stock.

One of the firm's most recent projects in ornamental railings is at the new William's Lake Hotel. Railings have been installed on four sets of stairs, the main entrance, interior and 200 feet along the porch overlooking the lake, Augustus R. Schrowang, Kingston architect, designed the railing.

Think It Through

By EDWARD F. HUTTON

Before the change of Government in 1952, the old crowd of Pinkos, leftwingers and Constitutional outlaws did not openly declare their intention to socialize our physical property, homes, farms, and such. All they wanted was to socialize our income, via the tax route. They did a pretty good job at that. Up to 92 per cent. Pretty close to confiscation. Even the humblest had to kick in 20 per cent, at least. They would "remake the world" and needed the soap! They thought the earners didn't — and, if they did — well, it didn't matter. "The end justifies the means," which meant — you, boys, feed the hens and do all the work, — we'll take the eggs.

Mr. Hutton

And with the taxpayers' money, the New Dealers went into all kinds of business competing with the taxpayers, even for the right to earn enough to pay the taxes.

Don't worry, farmers, we'll subsidize you, control your farm, and your production. You increase your prices, and charge it to the consumers. What concerns all of us is that the joker in the New Deal pack was the card you and I had to pick up.

A fine old Southern Democrat, Congressman Bob Doughton, of North Carolina, protested: "You can milk a cow every day, but you can skin her only once."

It's a great game of roulette — you can't win! You pay to play the Government's game. You're not "too damb dumb to understand," as Harry Hopkins said, if you take time to "think it through."

"You take my life when you take the means whereby I live."

Neighbor, do you agree?

BABSON on BUSINESS

New York City, Jan. 6—I have just been asked by a Wall Street banker to help him get some so-called "worthless" securities away from the readers of this column for a few cents a certificate (not per share).

I HEAR THAT for every 50 certificates which this broker buys, he finds that 49 are now worthless; but one is worth perhaps $1,000. This would be a certificate which some company needs in order to dissolve or consolidate without any outstanding obligations or complications.

Of course, it would be unfair to my readers for me to advise them what to do. But, I do urge you to throw nothing away which looks like a stock certificate even if your father or brother says it is "valueless and just cluttering up his desk or safe deposit box." Please do not send me any certificate to look at, but show them to your regular broker, if you wish.

MOST OF THESE "worthless" certificates in your attic or desk drawers are of old mining companies. They may never have been any good, or are of mines which have completely "petered out." The company did not have the money to dissolve legally, but some rancher has paid the taxes for the privilege of using the land for pasture. Hence, the company was forgotten after the stockholders were told it was no good.

The land is still useless for getting gold or silver, copper or lead; but uranium may have been found! As a result, the land could increase in value in one week from $5 per acre to $50,000 per acre! Some old-timer who remembers the old company has found a list of the old stockholders and has written them a letter offering $10 a share. As the envelope containing these certificates was marked "valueless," the family sold them for $10 per share while today they are really worth $1,000 a share.

WHEN YOU MOVE from one house to another and especially from one city to another, be sure to write the company in which you hold any stock of your new address. Don't ever look at a "valueless" certificate and say it is not worth a 3-cent postage stamp and the time required for writing such a letter. After too many changes of address, your envelope comes back marked "unknown" and the company marks you "dead."

One of the companies in which my family has very large holdings (United Stores Common, selling on the American Stock Exchange for $3 to $4) has nearly 100 such stockholders who cannot be located. Perhaps you are one of these stockholders. There probably are hundreds of other companies just like United Stores. This stock could easily double or treble in value.

WHEN A STOCK stops paying dividends the price of the stock may gradually decline, but no one gets panicky. The stockholders hope for a resumption of dividends. When, however, a bond defaults — especially a foreign bond—most stockholders think this is the end. The price of the bond then suddenly drops from around par to 50 cents on the dolllar. Discouraged bondholders have rushed to sell their bonds and the price has dropped to 20 or even less. But, in the course of years, many of these bonds returned in value to $1,000.

Some of the hotels in the famous Sheraton Chain were built in the gay nineties. The bonds were sold for $1,000 each. Then they defaulted and kicked about at perhaps $200 for years. Finally, one of Boston's most courageous financiers, Ernest Henderson, had faith in the hotel business and brought up these bonds. They have since been paid off at par.

BEFORE SELLING any "worthless stock" or defaulted bond, you can send $2 to the Information Center at New Boston, New Hampshire. This gives no investment advice but has lists of 40,000 such stocks and will pass along to you what report it has on file. This is a non-profit educational association to help deserving people on business problems. The $2 will cover a full year's inquiry. In other words, you can write again about the same stock or bond anytime within 12 months without further cost to you.

We are desirious that the people in this area should know how they are effected by these changes which were signed into law by the President September 1, 1954. We are submitting a series of articles dealing with each phase of the amended program.

ABOUT SIX MILLION more workers were automatically covered by social security on that date; approximately four million more may be brought under social security on an elective basis. Earnings up to $4,200 received in a year are starting to count toward future benefit payments, and a beneficiary may get all his insurance benefit payments while earning as high as $1,200 yearly. Applications for the new disability "freeze" could be made beginning with the month of January and extending through June 1955.

The largest group of gainfully-employed people in the nation not heretofore covered by social security has now been brought in—the 3.6 million self-employed farm operators. Commencing January 1, these farm operators are covered on the same terms as other self-employed people, except for special provisions under certain conditions for figuring the amount of their net annual earnings.

A CHANGE IN THE OLD requirement that farm workers be regularly employed by one employer means that over two million additional farm employees will start earning social security protection for themselves and their families in 1955. The new provision requires only that the farm hand be paid at least $100 in cash wages in a calendar year by one employer.

About 200,000 more domestic employes in private households are covered by the amended law because of the removal of the earlier requirement that the domestic employe work 24 days in each calendar quarter in any one household. Now the requirement, beginning January 1, is the payment of $50 or more cash wages by one household employer in a calendar quarter.

About 3,500,000 employes of state and local governments, excluded up to now because they are under a retirement system, may now be brought under social security if they elect coverage by a referendum. And members of the clergy, whether employed or self-employed, may come under the law as if they were self-employed persons.

OTHER SELF-EMPLOYED GROUPS covered for the first time by social security as of January 1, 1955, are professional engineers, accountants, architects, and funeral directors.

Of special significance to persons in work which came under social security for the first time on January 1 is a provision in the amended law which will enable those who are newly covered to achieve a fully insured status quickly. By working continuously, they may become insured as early as the second quarter of 1956.

SINCE EARNINGS of newly-covered workers must be averaged from the beginning of 1951, just like earnings of persons already in work covered by social security, their four years of non-covered employment or self-employment would cut down their average monthly earnings for figuring their benefit amount were it not for a special provision in the amended law. This provision, known as the "drop-out," permits the elimination of the four years of non-covered employment. The "drop-out" in effect, places the newly-covered groups in a position comparable to that of the groups that became newly covered in 1951, with respect to the figuring of the benefit amount.

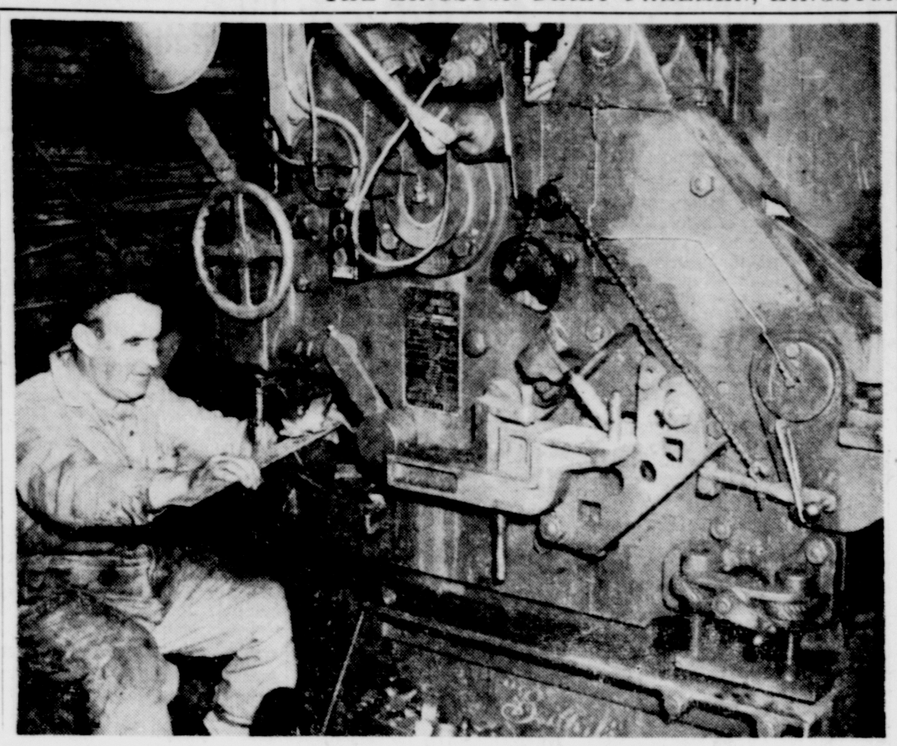

OF SPECIAL IMPORTANCE to persons already on the insurance benefit rolls is the provision affecting the amount of earnings they are permitted to have from work while getting monthly benefit payment checks. Beginning with 1955, such earnings from employment or self-employment (or a combination of the two) may be as much as $1,200 in a year. This replaces a provision in the old law whereby an employed person had to forego one or more months payments if his earnings were more than $75 a month, and a self-employed person getting insurance benefit payments was restricted to $900 earnings in a year. Beneficiaries who could not accept social security checks for certain months under the old law, but who can meet the conditions of the new provision, are advised to get in touch with their social security office.

THE SOCIAL SECURITY Administration also calls attention to the lowering of the age restrictions on earnings by beneficiaries from 75 to 72. On reaching 72, an insured person is now permitted to have earnings of any amount and still get benefit checks each month in the year. This provision goes into effect also at the beginning of 1955, and any person between 72 and 75 who has not claimed his benefits because he has continued to work should file his claim now, even if he plans to keep on working.

As recently as 1951, tuberculosis mortality in the United States was twice as high as it was in 1954, an insurance company's records show.

Local Iron Workers Produce Most Anything You Desire

Kingston iron and steel fabricators possess striking versatility, a check by The Freeman discloses.

You need a fire escape? It can be had. You want ornamental ironwork for your front steps, balconies, etc.? It can be discussed with local experts, designs prepared, the railings fabricated and installed.

You have a broken grate in the fireplace or a broken bicycle pedal? They can be welded.

You need steel bits, bollards, etc.? You want a steel swimming pool? You need a commercial boiler repaired, or your car radiator? Does your ferry need a new steel deck? Does the state need steel markers for its historical sites? What about some steamline pipe hangers? These services and products are available.

LOCAL IRONWORKERS have gone into the ornamental field in rather recent years—the last 10—and hundreds of Kingston and Ulster county homes have been supplied with ingeniously wrought railings.

The oldest firm in the city is the Ashley Welding Machine and Iron Co., Inc., at Henry and Sterling streets, incoporated in 1892 by the late C. P. Ashley. It was originally a plumbing shop and the founder, at the time of his death, was the oldest plumber in the city.

Later the firm entered the welding business, then the structural steel line. About 10 years ago steel fabrication was begun. One of the principal services offered by the firm is the re-tubing and repair of large industrial boilers.

Charles H. Ashley, son of the founder, is president of the company. M. Haefele is sales manager.

THE COMPANY has installed ornamental iron railings in from 400 to 500 homes in the area, Ashley points out. Some of these homes are 50 to 60 miles from Kingston. Among its projects was the installation of railings on 47 porches in a housing development in Newburgh.

The ornamental railing around Our Lady of Fatima Shrine on the Wall street side of St. Joseph's Church was done by Ashley. Another important job was installation of railings on the Jewish Community Center in Ellenville.

According to Haefele, the firm approaches its jobs in steel and iron the way a "carpenter does with wood—whatever the blueprint calls for."

RECENT PROJECTS: Steel for renovation of the Broadway Theater; 11 tons of reinforcing rod for the sub-footings of the proposed wing at Kingston Hospital; bending, welding and installation of radiant heat pipe coils for the Elizabeth A. Horton Memorial Hospital, Middletown; re-tubing of four or five boilers in the Schenectady area; steam line and main steam line pipe hangers for the new IBM plant; miscellaneous steel for Ottaviano and Arborio for the construction of thruway in Kingston area.

Other projects: Construction of steel ramps for the pits at the Grand street plant of IBM; designing and fabrication of metal signs for the U. S. Department of Interior National Parks Service; fabrication of steel historical markers at the Roosevelt Memorial, Hyde Park; fabrication of a steel deck on one of the Newburgh ferries; fabrication of railings for Ulster county highway bridges; steel for electrical transformer sub-station of the Rockland Power and Light Company, Middletown.

ITS EIGHT TRUCKS and five portable welding units are in a position to move anywhere, anytime. It has also done considerable welding on heavy equipment in the area.

R. H. Walthers, PE (professional engineer), who spent 30 years with the Tidewater Oil Company, is structural engineer for the firm. The company's welders are certified by the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. This means they are qualified to handle welding on high pressure steam lines. They are also U. S. Government Licensed Welders.

DeCicco was born in East Kingston, learned the auto business at 15, in 1923 purchased the Kingston Hardware Store on Broadway near St. James street, carrying auto parts as well as hardware. In 1928 he went back to the automobile business for a Long Island firm, in 1930 returning to Saugerties where he established a repair shop, specializing in welding and radiator work. In 1945 he sold it and moved to Kingston where he opened a business in ironwork and radiator repair on Van Deusen street.

DeCicco does both ornamental ironwork and heavy steel fabrication, as well as radiator work.

THE ORIGINAL SHOP became too small and DeCicco purchased an old bakery at 101 Abeel street. This building is now being renovated. It will be used primarily for a new venture—the fabrication of steel ornamental furniture such as tables, chairs, magazine racks, television stands, etc.

"The ornamental furniture market is going to be a big one," DeCicco said. He explained that he anticipated considerable expansion and that the new building has sufficient space to employ 150 men.

DeCicco used to make television antennae and said he would probably resume their fabrication again. Originally, when he first began making antennae, he was able to put out only five a day. Within two weeks, however, the operation had been so streamlined he was able to get out as many as 35 a day.

DeCicco has received orders for ornamental ironwork from as far as Texas, Washington, D. C., and Watertown near the Canadian border.

The firm's biggest field, however, is heavy fabricated steel.

DeCicco also welds and repairs truck bodies and heavy equipment. It handles work for the Kingston City Transportation Corporation and does radiator and frame work for the North American Cement Company.

The company has three trucks and five welding units, three of which are portable. The firm employs nine men.

Associated with DeCicco are James DeCicco, a brother, and Eugene Radel, outside foreman, and Charles DeCicco, a son, who is shop foreman.

LATEST COMER to local steel fabrication is Jay Steel Products, Inc., 37 Mill street, headed by Walter Jeghers and Mike Lucchese. It was established June 1, 1953.

The company specializes in structural steel, ornamental railings, fire escapes, fire doors, steel and aluminum windows, lally columns, reinforcing bars and wire mesh.

It is concentrating particularly on the warehousing end of the business, supplying smaller users in the area. The firm does extensive structural fabrication and a lot of steel stairwork.

Most of its business is with contractors. It is furnishing material for electrical contractors on the new IBM plant construction near Kingston.

JAY STEEL ALSO serves as franchise dealer for metal toilet partitions and storm windows. Sketches for the toilet partitions are submitted and the partitions assembled from materials in stock.

One of the firm's most recent projects in ornamental railings is at the new William's Lake Hotel. Railings have been installed on four sets of stairs, the main entrance, interior and 200 feet along the porch overlooking the lake, Augustus R. Schrowang, Kingston architect, designed the railing.

Think It Through

By EDWARD F. HUTTON

Mr. Hutton

Before the change of Government in 1952, the old crowd of Pinkos, leftwingers and Constitutional outlaws did not openly declare their intention to socialize our physical property, homes, farms, and such. All they wanted was to socialize our income, via the tax route. They did a pretty good job at that. Up to 92 per cent. Pretty close to confiscation. Even the humblest had to kick in 20 per cent, at least. They would "remake the world" and needed the soap! They thought the earners didn't — and, if they did — well, it didn't matter. "The end justifies the means," which meant — you, boys, feed the hens and do all the work, — we'll take the eggs.

And with the taxpayers' money, the New Dealers went into all kinds of business competing with the taxpayers, even for the right to earn enough to pay the taxes.

Don't worry, farmers, we'll subsidize you, control your farm, and your production. You increase your prices, and charge it to the consumers. What concerns all of us is that the joker in the New Deal pack was the card you and I had to pick up.

A fine old Southern Democrat, Congressman Bob Doughton, of North Carolina, protested: "You can milk a cow every day, but you can skin her only once."

It's a great game of roulette — you can't win! You pay to play the Government's game. You're not "too damb dumb to understand," as Harry Hopkins said, if you take time to "think it through."

"You take my life when you take the means whereby I live."

Neighbor, do you agree?

BABSON on BUSINESS

New York City, Jan. 6—I have just been asked by a Wall Street banker to help him get some so-called "worthless" securities away from the readers of this column for a few cents a certificate (not per share).

I HEAR THAT for every 50 certificates which this broker buys, he finds that 49 are now worthless; but one is worth perhaps $1,000. This would be a certificate which some company needs in order to dissolve or consolidate without any outstanding obligations or complications.

Of course, it would be unfair to my readers for me to advise them what to do. But, I do urge you to throw nothing away which looks like a stock certificate even if your father or brother says it is "valueless and just cluttering up his desk or safe deposit box." Please do not send me any certificate to look at, but show them to your regular broker, if you wish.

MOST OF THESE "worthless" certificates in your attic or desk drawers are of old mining companies. They may never have been any good, or are of mines which have completely "petered out." The company did not have the money to dissolve legally, but some rancher has paid the taxes for the privilege of using the land for pasture. Hence, the company was forgotten after the stockholders were told it was no good.

The land is still useless for getting gold or silver, copper or lead; but uranium may have been found! As a result, the land could increase in value in one week from $5 per acre to $50,000 per acre! Some old-timer who remembers the old company has found a list of the old stockholders and has written them a letter offering $10 a share. As the envelope containing these certificates was marked "valueless," the family sold them for $10 per share while today they are really worth $1,000 a share.

WHEN YOU MOVE from one house to another and especially from one city to another, be sure to write the company in which you hold any stock of your new address. Don't ever look at a "valueless" certificate and say it is not worth a 3-cent postage stamp and the time required for writing such a letter. After too many changes of address, your envelope comes back marked "unknown" and the company marks you "dead."

One of the companies in which my family has very large holdings (United Stores Common, selling on the American Stock Exchange for $3 to $4) has nearly 100 such stockholders who cannot be located. Perhaps you are one of these stockholders. There probably are hundreds of other companies just like United Stores. This stock could easily double or treble in value.

WHEN A STOCK stops paying dividends the price of the stock may gradually decline, but no one gets panicky. The stockholders hope for a resumption of dividends. When, however, a bond defaults — especially a foreign bond—most stockholders think this is the end. The price of the bond then suddenly drops from around par to 50 cents on the dolllar. Discouraged bondholders have rushed to sell their bonds and the price has dropped to 20 or even less. But, in the course of years, many of these bonds returned in value to $1,000.

Some of the hotels in the famous Sheraton Chain were built in the gay nineties. The bonds were sold for $1,000 each. Then they defaulted and kicked about at perhaps $200 for years. Finally, one of Boston's most courageous financiers, Ernest Henderson, had faith in the hotel business and brought up these bonds. They have since been paid off at par.

BEFORE SELLING any "worthless stock" or defaulted bond, you can send $2 to the Information Center at New Boston, New Hampshire. This gives no investment advice but has lists of 40,000 such stocks and will pass along to you what report it has on file. This is a non-profit educational association to help deserving people on business problems. The $2 will cover a full year's inquiry. In other words, you can write again about the same stock or bond anytime within 12 months without further cost to you.

Manhattan Farm Brought Wealth to Poor Attorney

New York, Jan. 7 (AP)—Back in 1850, a struggling young lawyer from the sticks nervously and reluctantly took the plunge of signing a note for $200 to buy a mid-Manhattan farm.

The city grew rapidly northward, and the property was worth seven million dollars before he died.

A rags-to-riches chain of events since John M. Bixby's flyer in Gotham pastureland had made $1,471,203 available for distribution among about 25 heirs.

This group—most in their 70s and some in their 80s—have been weeded out of more than 600 original possible claimants to shares in the bonanza.

The culling process has been going on for more than five years and has required search of family Bibles, newspaper files going back to the 1820s, and records of the Grand Army of the Republic, the Daughters of the American Revolution and other patriotic societies.

Surrogate (Judge) William T. Collins, who has been hearing the long story steeped in American lore, may wind up the case soon.

COLLINS HAS GOTTEN the facts from lawyers who searched for the heirs of the late Countess Grace Sterling Bixby Mankowski, daughter of John M. Bixby who founded the fortune.

Bixby's grandson, Count Robert Conrad Mankowski, died June 29, 1947, in Los Angeles, leaving $1,471,203 of his 7½ million dollar fortune to descendants of his mother, the Countess Mankowski.

The count said in his will that he thought some of the fortune should revert to Bixbys, and he stipulated that they should include "seventh degree next of kin" on his maternal side.

The daughter of Lawyer Bixby was married to Count Casmir Ignace Mankowski of Poland, who became a naturalized U. S. citizen. The countess died May 7, 1929.

THE SURROGATE COURT records tell of a story related by Bixby as to how he accumulated his fortune from the farm, which ran along the present 39th street from Broadway to 5th avenue.

"I should be as poor as a church rat but for one incident in my life," Bixby related. "I had wealth forced upon me and didn't know.

"I had come from the backwoods of New York, and a dollar looked like a big sum to me. I was a raw and struggling young lawyer, and paid $4 a week for my board and washing and found it hard to make ends meet. It looked as if I should starve at the law, so I was looking for work outside it.

"JUST THEN a friendly lawyer in the office where I had desk room said to me: 'Here's a chance for you to buy a farm.' He offered it for the appraised value of $200.

"I refused, saying, 'I have no money.' He offered to take a note on the farm and I agreed, even though I felt very nervous about giving my note for such a large amount.

"I made several renewals and New York grew so fast northward that I was able to sell a small part of the farm for more than to pay the note and interest and taxes.

"The rest of the farm was free and clear, and had I kept all the farm I should now be worth seven million dollars."

Electrol Plans 'Furlough' for 138

ELECTROL INCORPORATED, 85 Grand street, will lay off or "furlough" 128 employes as of Jan. 11, a spokesman for management said today.

The cut in personnel, which reduces the working force to 370, is necessary because of "highly competitive conditions" in the aircraft industry, the spokesman said.

People in the industry, he said, have been taking orders above demands, to keep their organizations going, and that general condition has been felt at the local plant.

Management hopes to make a 'more closely knitted organization," he said, and it is hoped that "before long" that those laid off will be taken back.

Bidding has been highly competitive in the industry, and resulting conditions "haven't permitted us to keep a full working force," at this time.

The indictment was handed up by a Sullivan county grand jury, which considered evidence in the death of the woman whose body was found along a side road leading from Route 52 between Woodbourne and Loch Sheldrake.

TERRY IS ACCUSED of slaying Mrs. Jersey early on the morning of December 1. He has been in jail at Monticello since the afternoon of December 3, when he was arrested by state police at his home, following discovery of the woman's body in a ditch.

Mrs. Jersey's death followed a chance meeting with Terry in a tavern near Liberty and what police contend was a planned rendezvous along Route 52 on which both had agreed earlier.

Police say the rendezvous was kept but an argument resulted, and culminated in murder.

Out-of-Town Children May Be Sent to School 8

The possibility of sending out-of-town children to School No. 8 beginning with the next school year is under study by the Kingston Board of Education.

It appears to be the consensus of the board that such action might be advantageous in some respects, for example, in the simplification of transportation for children from outlying districts.

There are approximately 400 out-of-town children attending local grade schools at present.

IT WAS POINTED OUT, however, that there are many questions to be considered. It is doubtful, for instance, that all out-of-town children can be handled in School 8.

Superintendent Arthur J. Laidlaw pointed out at the meeting of the board last night that with the transfer of children from other schools to School 8 it might be possible to transfer some teachers as well, thus escaping the necessity of hiring new teachers for School 8 classrooms.

He said the present tenant of the building was "partly out" and that renovation was proceeding rapidly. "The board will have a very good building when it's completed."

THE BUILDING is being completely refurnished, Laidlaw said, describing it as an "expensive job."

New windows are in, he said, and repairs to the roof began this week. He reported that a "ton of stones on the roof," tossed up there by children, had been removed.

Laidlaw said study of the budget for next year had begun. As major items he mentioned the anticipated completion of electrical work in the high school and the renovation of School 8.

President Robert Herzog told the board that the new superintendent, Earl F. Soper, would be in conference with the board in the matter of selecting a new principal of Kingston High School succeeding Theron L. Culver who has resigned effective July 1, 1955.

The board voted to reward teachers taking extra credits at teachers colleges as follows: $100 for 15 credits beyond the AB degree; $100 for the MA degree; $100 for 15 credits beyond the MA and $100 for the doctorate. At present, teachers receive $200 more upon completion of the MA. The new arrangement breaks it down into two payments, one at the end of 15 credits, the other upon receiving the MA. Additional pay for work beyond the MA is not included in the present pay schedule.

Richard Kalish, chairman of the building committee, recommended to the board that it investigate the feasibility of improving the lighting system in some of the grade schools, lighting which he described as "pretty tough" in some cases, especially on overcast days.

HE SAID Central Hudson had advised him that the job could be done without changing the present power lines to the buildings. "We might do one or two schools at a time," he suggested. "We are going to use most of the grade schools for eight or 10 years more."

Kalish said a spokesman for Central Hudson had told him the utility would be glad to investigate the renovations, which would cost the board nothing, in order to determine what such changes would entail.

Herzog called attention to the difficult nature of electrical work now being done to improve lighting in the high school. Kalish explained that work in the grade schools would be a much simpler operation.

Mrs. Vincent Connelly recommended consideration of nonshattering fluorescent lighting.

HERZOG SAID he also hopes the board will be able to make some improvements in the high school auditorium, describing the seats as in particularly bad shape. He suggested also that the stage and dressing rooms were in poor condition, pointing out that it might be possible to enlarge the dressing rooms and make classrooms. He said the auditorium also needed "going over."

William Rylance said he would like to see something done about the air-conditioning system in the auditorium.

The board awarded the contract for re-roofing School 8 to the Smith-Parish Company for a low bid of $3,698.

The application of Norma Manos Hobbs for a maternity leave of absence from January 29, 1955 to September 1, 1956, was approved.

Katherine Bannon Ruzzo was given probationary appointment as a teacher in the high school at a salary of $4,550 effective November 22, 1954. Eileen Schwenk was given temporary appointment as a nurse-teacher at a salary of $320 a month effective January 3, 1955.

Permission to attend the American Football Coaches Association meeting in New York January 5-7 was granted to Willard Burke. Permission was also granted Coach Kias and members of the physical education department to attend the annual meeting of the New York State Physical Education Association in Syracuse January 26-29.

siderable study" had been made on the proposal, since a resolution in the Common Council by Alderman James K. Ryan, some months ago, had suggested a study of the problem.

Recommendations offered by the American Water Works Association were considered by the board in drafting the proposed ordinance.

Water used locally for air conditioning during the past several years went to the sewers as waste.

The board approved a budget showing $298,000 in estimated income. It is expected that the full amount will be used for the year's operational costs, general expenses and for bonds and interest.

The 1955 salary schedule, including the $120 raise granted generally to other city employes, was approved. Other salary changes included increases of from $6,300 to $7,000 for the department superintendent; $4,650 to $4,800 for the assistant secretary and cashier; $4,100 to $4,250 for the senior clerk and accountant; $3,750 to $3,900 for the other senior clerk and $2,950 to $3,100 for the typist.

CIVIL SERVICE reclassification of three positions was approved. The new titles are labor foreman, water service maintenance man, and maintenance man. All are provisionally filled, but examinations are to be held to establish eligibility lists. Another recent reclassification was that of motor equipment man.

Edmund T. Cloonan, superintendent was authorized to prepare plans and specifications for extension of water service in Dietz Court and Melvin Drive, and the board received for consideration a request by Krovan Homes, Inc., to extend service to a new development east of Grandview avenue in the 12th ward.

The board gave final contract approval to Trowbridge Brothers, of Olive Bridge, to proceed with installation of about 800 feet of eight-inch pipe in the Wilkie avenue area in conjunction with the new high pressure service in the uptown area.

Gains extended out to around 4 points at the very best in key sections. There were many gains of 1 to around 2 points. Losses were scarce. They were as great as 3 points in a few instances.

Yesterday's volume soared to 5,300,000 shares, greatest since the outbreak of war in Europe in 1939.

on massive retaliation but that did not stop the Korean war and we were unprepared to fight it," Jackson said.

Jackson said "there is a definite need" for a thorough congressional inquiry into this and related subjects.

Sen. Flanders (R.-Vt.), an Armed Services committeeman, said he could "go along" with all of the Eisenhower defense proposals except possibly the cutback in ground forces.

"THEY WILL HAVE to show me how we can safely defend Europe with atomic cannons or other new weapons replacing military manpower," Flanders said.

Sen. Long (D.-La.), on the other hand, said he would support a reduction in the military forces. "I've always been convinced we could have more fighting capacity with less men and money," he said.

The President promised to spell out details for defense plans in two messages he will send to Congress next Thursday.

One will ask extension of the draft, due to expire June 30, plus a new version of military training intended to expand and strengthen the reserves.

The other will offer selective pay boosts plus fringe benefits.

The Pentagon has already announced Eisenhower will ask that up to 100,000 draft-age youths be allowed to volunteer for six months of training, after which they would be obligated in a reserve unit for nine years. This would free them from the draft.

Bills embodying a modified version of this plan were introduced yesterday in both Houses with bipartisan sponsorship and strong backing of the American Legion.

Manhattan Farm Brought Wealth to Poor Attorney

New York, Jan. 7 (AP)—Back in 1850, a struggling young lawyer from the sticks nervously and reluctantly took the plunge of signing a note for $200 to buy a mid-Manhattan farm.

The city grew rapidly northward, and the property was worth seven million dollars before he died.

A rags-to-riches chain of events since John M. Bixby's flyer in Gotham pastureland had made $1,471,203 available for distribution among about 25 heirs.

This group—most in their 70s and some in their 80s—have been weeded out of more than 600 original possible claimants to shares in the bonanza.

The culling process has been going on for more than five years and has required search of family Bibles, newspaper files going back to the 1820s, and records of the Grand Army of the Republic, the Daughters of the American Revolution and other patriotic societies.

Surrogate (Judge) William T. Collins, who has been hearing the long story steeped in American lore, may wind up the case soon.

COLLINS HAS GOTTEN the facts from lawyers who searched for the heirs of the late Countess Grace Sterling Bixby Mankowski, daughter of John M. Bixby who founded the fortune.

Bixby's grandson, Count Robert Conrad Mankowski, died June 29, 1947, in Los Angeles, leaving $1,471,203 of his 7½ million dollar fortune to descendants of his mother, the Countess Mankowski.

The count said in his will that he thought some of the fortune should revert to Bixbys, and he stipulated that they should include "seventh degree next of kin" on his maternal side.

The daughter of Lawyer Bixby was married to Count Casmir Ignace Mankowski of Poland, who became a naturalized U. S. citizen. The countess died May 7, 1929.

THE SURROGATE COURT records tell of a story related by Bixby as to how he accumulated his fortune from the farm, which ran along the present 39th street from Broadway to 5th avenue.

"I should be as poor as a church rat but for one incident in my life," Bixby related. "I had wealth forced upon me and didn't know.

"I had come from the backwoods of New York, and a dollar looked like a big sum to me. I was a raw and struggling young lawyer, and paid $4 a week for my board and washing and found it hard to make ends meet. It looked as if I should starve at the law, so I was looking for work outside it.

"JUST THEN a friendly lawyer in the office where I had desk room said to me: 'Here's a chance for you to buy a farm.' He offered it for the appraised value of $200.

"I refused, saying, 'I have no money.' He offered to take a note on the farm and I agreed, even though I felt very nervous about giving my note for such a large amount.

"I made several renewals and New York grew so fast northward that I was able to sell a small part of the farm for more than to pay the note and interest and taxes.

"The rest of the farm was free and clear, and had I kept all the farm I should now be worth seven million dollars."

Electrol Plans 'Furlough' for 138

ELECTROL INCORPORATED, 85 Grand street, will lay off or "furlough" 128 employes as of Jan. 11, a spokesman for management said today.

The cut in personnel, which reduces the working force to 370, is necessary because of "highly competitive conditions" in the aircraft industry, the spokesman said.

People in the industry, he said, have been taking orders above demands, to keep their organizations going, and that general condition has been felt at the local plant.

Management hopes to make a 'more closely knitted organization," he said, and it is hoped that "before long" that those laid off will be taken back.

Bidding has been highly competitive in the industry, and resulting conditions "haven't permitted us to keep a full working force," at this time.

Terry Is Indicted For Murder of Mrs. Flora Jersey

Monticello, Jan. 7—Thomas S. Terry Jr., 22, of Liberty has been indicted for first degree murder in the death of Mrs. Flora Banks Jersey, 25, of Ellenville, estranged wife of Alfred Jersey, 32, of Livingston Manor.

The indictment was handed up by a Sullivan county grand jury, which considered evidence in the death of the woman whose body was found along a side road leading from Route 52 between Woodbourne and Loch Sheldrake.

TERRY IS ACCUSED of slaying Mrs. Jersey early on the morning of December 1. He has been in jail at Monticello since the afternoon of December 3, when he was arrested by state police at his home, following discovery of the woman's body in a ditch.

Mrs. Jersey's death followed a chance meeting with Terry in a tavern near Liberty and what police contend was a planned rendezvous along Route 52 on which both had agreed earlier.

Police say the rendezvous was kept but an argument resulted, and culminated in murder.

Out-of-Town Children May Be Sent to School 8

The possibility of sending out-of-town children to School No. 8 beginning with the next school year is under study by the Kingston Board of Education.

It appears to be the consensus of the board that such action might be advantageous in some respects, for example, in the simplification of transportation for children from outlying districts.

There are approximately 400 out-of-town children attending local grade schools at present.

IT WAS POINTED OUT, however, that there are many questions to be considered. It is doubtful, for instance, that all out-of-town children can be handled in School 8.

Superintendent Arthur J. Laidlaw pointed out at the meeting of the board last night that with the transfer of children from other schools to School 8 it might be possible to transfer some teachers as well, thus escaping the necessity of hiring new teachers for School 8 classrooms.

He said the present tenant of the building was "partly out" and that renovation was proceeding rapidly. "The board will have a very good building when it's completed."

THE BUILDING is being completely refurnished, Laidlaw said, describing it as an "expensive job."

New windows are in, he said, and repairs to the roof began this week. He reported that a "ton of stones on the roof," tossed up there by children, had been removed.

Laidlaw said study of the budget for next year had begun. As major items he mentioned the anticipated completion of electrical work in the high school and the renovation of School 8.

President Robert Herzog told the board that the new superintendent, Earl F. Soper, would be in conference with the board in the matter of selecting a new principal of Kingston High School succeeding Theron L. Culver who has resigned effective July 1, 1955.

The board voted to reward teachers taking extra credits at teachers colleges as follows: $100 for 15 credits beyond the AB degree; $100 for the MA degree; $100 for 15 credits beyond the MA and $100 for the doctorate. At present, teachers receive $200 more upon completion of the MA. The new arrangement breaks it down into two payments, one at the end of 15 credits, the other upon receiving the MA. Additional pay for work beyond the MA is not included in the present pay schedule.

Richard Kalish, chairman of the building committee, recommended to the board that it investigate the feasibility of improving the lighting system in some of the grade schools, lighting which he described as "pretty tough" in some cases, especially on overcast days.

HE SAID Central Hudson had advised him that the job could be done without changing the present power lines to the buildings. "We might do one or two schools at a time," he suggested. "We are going to use most of the grade schools for eight or 10 years more."

Kalish said a spokesman for Central Hudson had told him the utility would be glad to investigate the renovations, which would cost the board nothing, in order to determine what such changes would entail.

Herzog called attention to the difficult nature of electrical work now being done to improve lighting in the high school. Kalish explained that work in the grade schools would be a much simpler operation.

Mrs. Vincent Connelly recommended consideration of non-shattering fluorescent lighting.

HERZOG SAID he also hopes the board will be able to make some improvements in the high school auditorium, describing the seats as in particularly bad shape. He suggested also that the stage and dressing rooms were in poor condition, pointing out that it might be possible to enlarge the dressing rooms and make classrooms. He said the auditorium also needed "going over."

William Rylance said he would like to see something done about the air-conditioning system in the auditorium.

The board awarded the contract for re-roofing School 8 to the Smith-Parish Company for a low bid of $3,698.

The application of Norma Manos Hobbs for a maternity leave of absence from January 29, 1955 to September 1, 1956, was approved.

Katherine Bannon Ruzzo was given probationary appointment as a teacher in the high school at a salary of $4,550 effective November 22, 1954. Eileen Schwenk was given temporary appointment as a nurse-teacher at a salary of $320 a month effective January 3, 1955.

Permission to attend the American Football Coaches Association meeting in New York January 5-7 was granted to Willard Burke. Permission was also granted Coach Kias and members of the physical education department to attend the annual meeting of the New York State Physical Education Association in Syracuse January 26-29.

siderable study" had been made on the proposal, since a resolution in the Common Council by Alderman James K. Ryan, some months ago, had suggested a study of the problem.

Recommendations offered by the American Water Works Association were considered by the board in drafting the proposed ordinance.

Water used locally for air conditioning during the past several years went to the sewers as waste.

The board approved a budget showing $298,000 in estimated income. It is expected that the full amount will be used for the year's operational costs, general expenses and for bonds and interest.

The 1955 salary schedule, including the $120 raise granted generally to other city employes, was approved. Other salary changes included increases of from $6,300 to $7,000 for the department superintendent; $4,650 to $4,800 for the assistant secretary and cashier; $4,100 to $4,250 for the senior clerk and accountant; $3,750 to $3,900 for the other senior clerk and $2,950 to $3,100 for the typist.

CIVIL SERVICE reclassification of three positions was approved. The new titles are labor foreman, water service maintenance man, and maintenance man. All are provisionally filled, but examinations are to be held to establish eligibility lists. Another recent reclassification was that of motor equipment man.

Edmund T. Cloonan, superintendent was authorized to prepare plans and specifications for extension of water service in Dietz Court and Melvin Drive, and the board received for consideration a request by Krovan Homes, Inc., to extend service to a new development east of Grandview avenue in the 12th ward.

The board gave final contract approval to Trowbridge Brothers, of Olive Bridge, to proceed with installation of about 800 feet of eight-inch pipe in the Wilkie avenue area in conjunction with the new high pressure service in the uptown area.

on massive retaliation but that did not stop the Korean war and we were unprepared to fight it," Jackson said.

Jackson said "there is a definite need" for a thorough congressional inquiry into this and related subjects.

Sen. Flanders (R.-Vt.), an Armed Services committeeman, said he could "go along" with all of the Eisenhower defense proposals except possibly the cutback in ground forces.

"THEY WILL HAVE to show me how we can safely defend Europe with atomic cannons or other new weapons replacing military manpower," Flanders said.

Sen. Long (D.-La.), on the other hand, said he would support a reduction in the military forces. "I've always been convinced we could have more fighting capacity with less men and money," he said.

The President promised to spell out details for defense plans in two messages he will send to Congress next Thursday.

One will ask extension of the draft, due to expire June 30, plus a new version of military training intended to expand and strengthen the reserves.

The other will offer selective pay boosts plus fringe benefits.

The Pentagon has already annouced Eisenhower will ask that up to 100,000 draft-age youths be allowed to volunteer for six months of training, after which they would be obligated in a reserve unit for nine years. This would free them from the draft.

Bills embodying a modified version of this plan were introduced yesterday in both Houses with bipartisan sponsorship and strong backing of the American Legion.

Mrs. B. Peckerman Found Rough Sailing On Southern Cruise

Mrs. Bertha Peckerman of Plymouth avenue returned Sunday from a hurricane-struck sixteen-day cruise on the SS Nieuw Amsterdam of the Holland-America Line. Accompanying her on the trip was her grandson, S. William "Jiggs" Englander, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Englander of Albany, formerly of this city. He is the nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer Englander of 628 Broadway.

THE CRUISE visited the following ports, St. Thomas, Virgin Islands; Grenada, La Guaira, Curacao, and Cristobal, Panama, and Kingston, Jamaica,, then a day and a half in Havana, Cuba.

Taking the cruise primarily to escape the cold and blustery weather up north, Mrs. Peckerman reports that the southern skies were anything but sunny, with fog and rain greeting the tourists at several ports.

VISITING WITH the captain, on special invitation, the Kingston traveler learned that the storms which made the voyage a real adventure, were the worst the captain had encountered in his 20 years on this particular sea route. Mrs. Peckerman visited only at Curacao, Panama, St. Thomas and Kingston, Jamaica, since the rough sea made landing in a tender much too risky at other ports.

IN HER EIGHT previous trips to the southern shores, Mrs. Peckerman found ideal weather at all ports, with calm Caribbean waters for pleasant sailing. A bright spot — the youngsters enjoyed the trip despite all the turbulence.

"Jiggs" used the sail on the Panama Canal through the locks, and the visit to the El Panama Hotel for lunch, as material for a paper for his school. Just fifteen, on his first trip south, "How did we get to the Pacific ocean?" after the 70 mile trip across the country.

He presented his cousin, Susan, daughter of the Mortimer Englanders, with a basket-purse from Jamaica, as a souvenir.

MRS. PECKERMAN has visited Cartagena, Venezuela, three times on former cruises, but Caracas, Venezuela, was the farthest south point visited this trip. Not at all discouraged by the really unusual weather on the trip, the seasoned voyager is planning to make another trip next year.

A QUESTION OF PAYMENT

A mother writes me: "My son who is a junior at the University tells me it is his responsibility, when he invites his best girl to a school dance, to pay her hotel bill, and that he is supposed to do this at the time he makes the reservation for her. He says that she only pays her transportation to and from the University. I, on the other hand, claim that his responsibility includes only such matters as entertainment, dinner, etc., but she pays her own hotel accommodations and to have a man pay this for her, places her in a very bad light. Will you please settle this."

If it is customary at your son's university for a group of boys to take a whole corridor of rooms at the hotel for their guests, and the boys share the expense then it is perfectly proper. But for a boy alone to take a room for his particular partner, is not proper.

Must Guests Wait?

Dear Mrs. Post: In the case of a large wedding reception where there are several hundred guests, is it necessary for all the guests to wait for supper until everyone has passed through the receiving line? It seems inconsiderate to ask early arrivals to wait an hour or two for supper to be served.

Answer: If it is a sit-down supper, everyone waits until the bride and groom lead the way to the supper tables. If it is a buffet supper the guests go into the dining room and help themselves after greeting the bridal couple.

The Mature Parent

Understanding Misbehavior Needn't Bar Moral Judgment

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Certain psycologists use a word of severe reproach. The word is "judgmental." It expresses their conviction that moral judgment of someone's bad action is impossible when we understand all the motives which compelled it.

This attack upon moral judgment partially accounts for the uncertainty in American parents which is our No. 1 psychological problem. For moral values were all you and I had by which to judge Jimmy's misbehavior. Told that they are unreliable and superficial measurements, we've been left with no values by which to judge the lie Jimmy tells us. As a result, our mental health has suffered—and Jimmy's along with it.

The psychologists did not intend to upset us. They were just very excited by what they'd discovered about our real motives for behavior. By applying an ink-blot test to Jimmy, they'd learned that his lie was nothing but his inexperienced protest against attention given to his little brother. And rushed into print to warn us that we must not judge him any more by moral values. In their enthusiasm, they forgot that we didn't have their clinical skills with ink-blot tests. And lacking this professional machinery of theirs, could not probe into Jimmy for the information it had dredged up for them.

This is the disservice these psychologists have rendered us along with their contributions. Their scorn of moral judgment as unreliable and superficial has turned us all into anxious perfectionists. When Jimmy lies, we get very nervous because we know we can't make the perfect psychological judgment on his action.

So I want to tell parents that all psychologists do not scorn moral judgment. Teacher of psychologists Erich Fromm writes, "We may understand why and how a person becomes destructive, greedy or jealous but we can also judge his failure as a moral one. UNDERSTANDING DOES NOT MEAN CONDONING: IT ONLY MEANS THAT WE DO NOT ACCUSE ANOTHER AS IF WE WERE GOD OR A JUDGE PLACED ABOVE HIM."

It is never moral judgment that hurts a child. All that can make it superficial and dangerous is the contemptuous anger that by infusing it, turns moral judgment into accusation.

Bad feeling in the judge is what makes his moral judgment bad.

I cannot overemphasize the importance of this distinction. Many of our problems as parents are due to our failure to understand it. Our confusion upon this point is a real hazard to the mental health of this nation.

Mrs. B. Peckerman Found Rough Sailing On Southern Cruise

Mrs. Bertha Peckerman of Plymouth avenue returned Sunday from a hurricane-struck sixteen-day cruise on the SS Nieuw Amsterdam of the Holland-America Line. Accompanying her on the trip was her grandson, S. William "Jiggs" Englander, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Englander of Albany, formerly of this city. He is the nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer Englander of 628 Broadway.

THE CRUISE visited the following ports, St. Thomas, Virgin Islands; Grenada, La Guaira, Curacao, and Cristobal, Panama, and Kingston, Jamaica,, then a day and a half in Havana, Cuba.

Taking the cruise primarily to escape the cold and blustery weather up north, Mrs. Peckerman reports that the southern skies were anything but sunny, with fog and rain greeting the tourists at several ports.

VISITING WITH the captain, on special invitation, the Kingston traveler learned that the storms which made the voyage a real adventure, were the worst the captain had encountered in his 20 years on this particular sea route. Mrs. Peckerman visited only at Curacao, Panama, St. Thomas and Kingston, Jamaica, since the rough sea made landing in a tender much too risky at other ports.

IN HER EIGHT previous trips to the southern shores, Mrs. Peckerman found ideal weather at all ports, with calm Caribbean waters for pleasant sailing. A bright spot — the youngsters enjoyed the trip despite all the turbulence.

"Jiggs" used the sail on the Panama Canal through the locks, and the visit to the El Panama Hotel for lunch, as material for a paper for his school. Just fifteen, on his first trip south, "How did we get to the Pacific ocean?" after the 70 mile trip across the country.

MRS. PECKERMAN has visited Cartagena, Venezuela, three times on former cruises, but Caracas, Venezuela, was the farthest south point visited this trip. Not at all discouraged by the really unusual weather on the trip, the seasoned voyager is planning to make another trip next year.

A QUESTION OF PAYMENT

A mother writes me: "My son who is a junior at the University tells me it is his responsibility, when he invites his best girl to a school dance, to pay her hotel bill, and that he is supposed to do this at the time he makes the reservation for her. He says that she only pays her transportation to and from the University. I, on the other hand, claim that his responsibility includes only such matters as entertainment, dinner, etc., but she pays her own hotel accommodations and to have a man pay this for her, places her in a very bad light. Will you please settle this."

If it is customary at your son's university for a group of boys to take a whole corridor of rooms at the hotel for their guests, and the boys share the expense then it is perfectly proper. But for a boy alone to take a room for his particular partner, is not proper.

Must Guests Wait?

Dear Mrs. Post: In the case of a large wedding reception where there are several hundred guests, is it necessary for all the guests to wait for supper until everyone has passed through the receiving line? It seems inconsiderate to ask early arrivals to wait an hour or two for supper to be served.

Answer: If it is a sit-down supper, everyone waits until the bride and groom lead the way to the supper tables. If it is a buffet supper the guests go into the dining room and help themselves after greeting the bridal couple.

Dear Mrs. Post: A friend of mine gave me a very good-looking smoking jacket and I would like to know just when it can be worn in good taste. I am a young bachelor and have my own apartment. Would it be permissible to wear it when I have "company."

Trouble about telling a good story is that every time you tell one, you have to listen to a couple of poor ones.

The Sunday school class was composed of three-year-olds. The teacher asked—

Teacher—Do any of you remember who St. Matthew was?

No answer.

Teacher—Well, who was St. Mark?

Still no answer.

Teacher — Surely someone must remember who Peter was?

The little faces were full of interest, but the room was quiet. Finally, a tiny voice came from the back of the room.

Voice—I fink he was a wabbit.

Woman Caller—I just wanted to tell you that you need not search for my husband. I found him myself. He had forgotten to take off his overcoat, and I hung him in the closet by mistake.

The visiting lecturer unwittingly had chosen for his topic of the evening a subject of tremendous controversy in the little town. He was roundly hissed and booed, and was leaving the hall dejectedly when he was approached by the night watchman.

Watchman—Don't let 'em getcha down, sir (consolingly). The really important people all stayed at home, so you have nothing to worry about.

Brief Freedom

Danbury, Conn. (AP) — Dale Boas, 22, of Bridgeport was sentenced to a year in jail on charges involving an accident with a truck he had stolen. Good behavior won his release after serving three months of the term. But within six hours he was back in police custody. The charges? Theft of two motor vehicles, and one of them wrecked.

Cold Spot Hunted

Devils Lake, N. D. (AP)—The chamber of commerce received a letter from an Idahoan who wants to sell a full-length black bearskin coat. J. R. Finn of Council, Idaho, wrote that he had heard Devils Lake is one of the coldest places in the country and might provide a buyer for the garment. Finn said the coat is worth $50 and he will sell it for $25. In Idaho, he added, it never gets cold enough for the coat to be needed. "You can't even stand the thing until it gets down to 20 or 30 degrees below zero," Finn wrote.

One of the most interesting hands that I have seen in a long time was played by the great Howard Schenken, famous New York expert, in a tournament held last spring in Monte Carlo. The contract seemed to depend on getting reasonably good breaks in both red suits, but Schenken made his contract even though both suits broke badly.

The bidding was reasonable enough. North had normal trump support and 9 points in high cards, so could well afford to raise. South had about an ace better than an opening bid, so could well afford to invite a game.

North hated to refuse the invitation despite the fact that he had very poor distribution, and so the final contract was a slightly ambitious game.

West opened the jack of clubs, holding the trick, and continued with the ten. Schenken won the second trick in dummy with the ace of clubs and led a low diamond. East played the four, and Schenken covered with the five of diamonds, ducking the trick into the West hand.

It didn't really matter what West led back, but West actually chose to lead a spade. Schenken won with the ace, drew two rounds of trumps with the ace and queen, and then stopped for thought when East discarded a club on the second round of trumps.

The hand now seemed full of losers. There were two losing clubs, a losing trump, a diamond already lost and perhaps another diamond to be lost.

Schenken continued calmly by ruffing a spade in his hand. He next took the king and ace of diamonds and ruffed his last diamond with dummy's last trump. Finally he ruffed another spade with the nine of hearts and cashed the king of hearts as his tenth trick.

The last trick was won by both opponents—West with the last trump, and East with the king of clubs.

Maroon-NFA Contest Features Duel Between Brodhead-Burkoski

Field House Clash Rated Tossup

It might not be Tom Gola vs. Si Green and Dick Ricketts but the Skip Brodhead vs. Mickey Burkoski duel tonight at the Kate Walton field house should be something to watch.

It's Kingston vs. Newburgh, still the standout attraction in DUSO basketball. Game time is 8 p. m.

The experts says its even-stephen, take your pick, but Maroon followers are confident Brodhead and company will topple the Goldbacks as the last unbeaten squad in the conference.

FROM NOW ON IN it's for the blue chips in the DUSO race. Other games find Fallsburgh at Middletown, Poughkeepsie at Port Jervis and Liberty at Monticello.

But this is the big one. A Newburgh victory would put heavy pressure on all the other contenders. Two games in the loss column would be a tremendous amount of ground to pick up on the veteran Goldbacks.

The Brodhead-Burkoski duel is also a standoff at this stage of the season. Burkoski hit 20 points each time out against Poughkeepsie and Middletown.

BRODHEAD WITH 79 points in four games is only two points under the magic 20-point average. He led off with 18 against Catskill. Then followed a 21-point performance against Port Jervis; 17 against Poughkeepsie his seasonal high of 22 against Monticello.

A high scoring duel is inevitable on the spacious field house court. Kingston has rolled up 291 points in four outings for a 72-plus average and Newburgh piled up 137 in two DUSO clashes with Poughkeepsie and Middletown for a 68-plus figure.

NEWBURGH'S ..STARTING lineup figures to have Harold Kaplan, with 25 points in two DUSO games, and Jack McDonough at forwards and Richard Clark and Jack Schoenberger at guards.

Ray Lawrence will have to bear the brunt of keeping Burkoski in a respectable scoring range, unless Coach Kias decides on some double-teaming maneuvers. The other Kingston starters will be chosen from among Bob Maines, John Woolsey, Don Baum and Tom Fleming.

Kelder Leads With 660 Series

Ferraro Major League keglers enjoyed one of the most productive nights of a somewhat barren season last night, with two new records and five series of "600" or better.

Elwood Robinson fired 268 for a new individual single record, eclipsing the old mark of 266 held by Secretary George Robinson.

RANDY KELDER LED THE INDIVIDUAL shooting with 660 on lines of 183-234-243. Tom Carlino toppled 231-623, John Ferraro Jr., 205-248-629, Elwood Robinson 268-618; Larry Petersen Jr., 248-627.

Rae Saegen (166) and Eleanor Werbalowsky 454 on 162-133-159 took it all in the Sisterhood League.

Best of the night in the Telco loop were Ken Hopper 199 and W. Burger 517.

The results:

Recall Bevo Francis? He's Real Actor Now With Globetrotter 2nds

New York (NEA)—Newt Oliver, the little guy who came close to turning tiny Rio Grande College into a Frankenstein in reaching for the moon with his Bevo Francis a while back, has had to settle for a little less.

You'll all remember Newt and Bevo. Newt was the coach and athletic director of the tiny Ohio college whose basketball team broke into as much newspaper space as Senator McCarthy with the 6-7 Francis pouring in as much as 113 points per game.

Last year, the wave they rode began to subside and it finally disappeared as Francis and Oliver quit Rio Grande.

BUT THEY DIDN'T disappear. The once fabulous pair are part of a touring Harlem Globettroter aggregation this season.

Newt coaches and Bevo plays for a straight-man team known as the Boston Whirlwinds. Their job is to go through the motions as opposition to Abe Saperstein's western unit. The Trotters, you see, hardly ever lose. And never to their own opposition.

Their status is so cut and dried that Oliver, once a hawk on Bevo's scoring at Rio Grande isn't keeping any records of his boy's shooting against the Globetrotters but insists it is usually anywhere from 40 to 60 points a game.

"HE'S STILL a scoring genius. Give him the ball and he'll score. If he were back in college that new bonus rule would assure Bevo of from 10 to 15 more points a game," Oliver says — still talking with that almost super-salesmanship he displayed at Rio Grande.

When Rio Grande expelled Francis, Oliver left with him—and the two promptly signed with Saperstein. The Western unit they were assigned to isn't considered the "big" outfit of Saperstein's organization — the Goose Tatum-Leon Hillard is the famed one—but it's still profitable enough an affair to keep Oliver quiet even though he is losing games.

EVERYWHERE THE tour goes, fans want to take a look at Bevo. Smart drum-beating has kept Bevo an attraction — and no mention is made of the glaring inadequacies in his game which colleges closer to his class quickly caught.

How close Oliver and his charge came to soaring to heights never heard of in college athletics nobody will ever know.

Accord Boxer Scores Kayo in Ring Debut

Western Conference Favors Regional Plan

New York, Jan. 7 (AP)—The rebelling Big Ten may force an oll-or-nothing showdown today in the NCAA convention over the dynamite-laden football television problem — a showdown that possibly could wreck the 49-year-old organization.

Michigan's H. O. (Fritz) Crisler tossed the first bomb yesterday into the hitherto serene proceedings with a demand for more liberal television along national-regional lines, or else the Big Ten might go ahead on its own. The Big Ten plan calls for nine regional and four national telecasts.

And another Big Ten figure said he planned to ask the NCAA membership to vote today on a resolution for regional TV.

"IF THE CONVENTION turns it down, my school will go ahead and arrange to televise its games on its own," Added the representative, who asked anonymity.

Such unilateral action normally would result in expulsion from the NCAA and force the national organization to order its members not to compete with the insurgent. Thus, the school would not have any one to play with let alone telecast a game.

But these are not normal times and the Big Ten apparently is in the mood to get the explosive issue settled now instead of two or three months later if normal procedure were followed.

Crisler, in making his dramatic pronouncement in a 25-minute talk without referring to notes, said that his powerful and influential conference would stick by any member forced to break ranks by state legislative pressure.

IN SUCH AN event, national controls on TV would be finished and the gates to unrestricted television would be wide open. This is what Notre Dame and a number of other schools have been advocating for several years.

Crisler made his forceful statement in a round table discussion of six possible plans for telecasting this fall. After the oratory, the members voted in a secret straw ballot for their preference. The results of the poll were not to be disclosed and were to be used for the guidance only of the 1955 NCAA TV committee to be chosen today.

But Father Edward P. Joyce, vice-president of Notre Dame, said he will ask that the vote be disclosed today so that the sentiment of the membership will be known.

The Pacific Coast Conference, through Al Masters of Stanford, said, as expected, that "we also are definitely in favor of regional television."

But the numerically powerful 101-member Eastern College Athletic Conference, and many other schools are flatly opposed to the regional TV proposition.

Massive Line Makes South Favorite in Senior Bowl

With both squads loaded with sharp-shooting passers and explosive runners, the defenses thrown up by north Coach Paul Brown and his opponent Steve Owen could very likely spell the difference in the 25-man clubs.

Owen, who has yet to win from Brown in the classic, has all Americans Bud Brooks, Arkansas guard; Rex Reedboggan, Mississippi tackle; Kurt Burris, Oklahoma center, and Frank McDonald, Miami (Fla.) end, in his line.

BROWN CAN ALSO muster a stout defense in addition to his strong running attack led by Wisconsin fullback Alan Ameche, picked as the country's outstanding player during the past season.

Brown coached the north to victories in the last three games, 20-14, 28-13 and 20-6 after being the underdog in each. Owen, South coach in all five games, won the first two 19-18 and 22-13.

The heaviest advance ticket sale in the game's history indicate a crowd of more than 30,000 in 36,000 capacity Ladd Stadium. The game will be broadcast by CBS.

Rhodes Scholar And Top Scorer

Lennie Rosenbluth, six-five sophomore originally out of New York but now making his home at Greenville, Tenn., collected 106 points for a 35.3 average in his first three games. His accuracy was 48.8 on field goals, 85.7 on free throws. He's leading the Tar Heels in rebounds with 55, a 19.3 average.

Field House Clash Rated Tossup

It might not be Tom Gola vs. Si Green and Dick Ricketts but the Skip Brodhead vs. Mickey Burkoski duel tonight at the Kate Walton field house should be something to watch.

It's Kingston vs. Newburgh, still the standout attraction in DUSO basketball. Game time is 8 p. m.

The experts says its even-stephen, take your pick, but Maroon followers are confident Brodhead and company will topple the Goldbacks as the last unbeaten squad in the conference.

FROM NOW ON IN it's for the blue chips in the DUSO race. Other games find Fallsburgh at Middletown, Poughkeepsie at Port Jervis and Liberty at Monticello.

But this is the big one. A Newburgh victory would put heavy pressure on all the other contenders. Two games in the loss column would be a tremendous amount of ground to pick up on the veteran Goldbacks.

The Brodhead-Burkoski duel is also a standoff at this stage of the season. Burkoski hit 20 points each time out against Poughkeepsie and Middletown.

BRODHEAD WITH 79 points in four games is only two points under the magic 20-point average. He led off with 18 against Catskill. Then followed a 21-point performance against Port Jervis; 17 against Poughkeepsie his seasonal high of 22 against Monticello.

A high scoring duel is inevitable on the spacious field house court. Kingston has rolled up 291 points in four outings for a 72-plus average and Newburgh piled up 137 in two DUSO clashes with Poughkeepsie and Middletown for a 68-plus figure.

NEWBURGH'S ..STARTING lineup figures to have Harold Kaplan, with 25 points in two DUSO games, and Jack McDonough at forwards and Richard Clark and Jack Schoenberger at guards.

Ray Lawrence will have to bear the brunt of keeping Burkoski in a respectable scoring range, unless Coach Kias decides on some double-teaming maneuvers. The other Kingston starters will be chosen from among Bob Maines, John Woolsey, Don Baum and Tom Fleming.

BUT THEY DIDN'T disappear. The once fabulous pair are part of a touring Harlem Globettroter aggregation this season.

Newt coaches and Bevo plays for a straight-man team known as the Boston Whirlwinds. Their job is to go through the motions as opposition to Abe Saperstein's western unit. The Trotters, you see, hardly ever lose. And never to their own opposition.

Their status is so cut and dried that Oliver, once a hawk on Bevo's scoring at Rio Grande isn't keeping any records of his boy's shooting against the Globetrotters but insists it is usually anywhere from 40 to 60 points a game.

"HE'S STILL a scoring genius. Give him the ball and he'll score. If he were back in college that new bonus rule would assure Bevo of from 10 to 15 more points a game," Oliver says — still talking with that almost super-salesmanship he displayed at Rio Grande.

When Rio Grande expelled Francis, Oliver left with him—and the two promptly signed with Saperstein. The Western unit they were assigned to isn't considered the "big" outfit of Saperstein's organization — the Goose Tatum-Leon Hillard is the famed one—but it's still profitable enough an affair to keep Oliver quiet even though he is losing games.

EVERYWHERE THE tour goes, fans want to take a look at Bevo. Smart drum-beating has kept Bevo an attraction — and no mention is made of the glaring inadequacies in his game which colleges closer to his class quickly caught.

Bevo, you'll recall, made some of his big lumps against schools nobody ever heard of—like the 113 points he dumped in against Hillsdale.

How close Oliver and his charge came to soaring to heights never heard of in college athletics nobody will ever know.

Accord Boxer Scores Kayo in Ring Debut

Western Conference Favors Regional Plan

New York, Jan. 7 (AP)—The rebelling Big Ten may force an oll-or-nothing showdown today in the NCAA convention over the dynamite-laden football television problem — a showdown that possibly could wreck the 49-year-old organization.

Michigan's H. O. (Fritz) Crisler tossed the first bomb yesterday into the hitherto serene proceedings with a demand for more liberal television along national-regional lines, or else the Big Ten might go ahead on its own. The Big Ten plan calls for nine regional and four national telecasts.

And another Big Ten figure said he planned to ask the NCAA membership to vote today on a resolution for regional TV.

"IF THE CONVENTION turns it down, my school will go ahead and arrange to televise its games on its own," Added the representative, who asked anonymity.

Such unilateral action normally would result in expulsion from the NCAA and force the national organization to order its members not to compete with the insurgent. Thus, the school would not have any one to play with let alone telecast a game.

But these are not normal times and the Big Ten apparently is in the mood to get the explosive issue settled now instead of two or three months later if normal procedure were followed.

Crisler, in making his dramatic pronouncement in a 25-minute talk without referring to notes, said that his powerful and influential conference would stick by any member forced to break ranks by state legislative pressure.

IN SUCH AN event, national controls on TV would be finished and the gates to unrestricted television would be wide open. This is what Notre Dame and a number of other schools have been advocating for several years.

Crisler made his forceful statement in a round table discussion of six possible plans for telecasting this fall. After the oratory, the members voted in a secret straw ballot for their preference. The results of the poll were not to be disclosed and were to be used for the guidance only of the 1955 NCAA TV committee to be chosen today.

But Father Edward P. Joyce, vice-president of Notre Dame, said he will ask that the vote be disclosed today so that the sentiment of the membership will be known.

The Pacific Coast Conference, through Al Masters of Stanford, said, as expected, "hat "we also are definitely in favor of regional television."

But the numerically powerful 101-member Eastern College Athletic Conference, and many other schools are flatly opposed to the regional TV proposition.

Massive Line Makes South Favorite in Senior Bowl

Mobile, Ala., Jan. 7 (AP)—A massive but mobile line studded with All-Americans and backed up by some of the fiercest tacklers in the nation make the south a touchdown favorite in tomorrow's Senior Bowl game.

With both squads loaded with sharp-shooting passers and explosive runners, the defenses thrown up by north Coach Paul Brown and his opponent Steve Owen could very likely spell the difference in the 25-man clubs.

Owen, who has yet to win from Brown in the classic, has all Americans Bud Brooks, Arkansas guard; Rex Reedboggan, Mississippi tackle; Kurt Burris, Oklahoma center, and Frank McDonald, Miami (Fla.) end, in his line.

BROWN CAN ALSO muster a stout defense in addition to his strong running attack led by Wisconsin fullback Alan Ameche, picked as the country's outstanding player during the past season.

Brown coached the north to victories in the last three games, 20-14, 28-13 and 20-6 after being the underdog in each. Owen, South coach in all five games, won the first two 19-18 and 22-13.

The heaviest advance ticket sale in the game's history indicate a crowd of more than 30,000 in 36,000 capacity Ladd Stadium. The game will be broadcast by CBS.

Rhodes Scholar And Top Scorer

Lennie Rosenbluth, six-five sophomore originally out of New York but now making his home at Greenville, Tenn., collected 106 points for a 35.3 average in his first three games. His accuracy was 48.8 on field goals, 85.7 on free throws. He's leading the Tar Heels in rebounds with 55, a 19.3 average.

Wininger Leads In Coast Golf

Los Angeles, Jan. 7 (AP)—Almost everybody had something uncomplimentary to say about the weather which was provided for the start of the Los Angeles Open Golf Tournament—everybody, that is, except first round leader Bo Wininger.

It was windy, cold and rainy, but the 32-year-old Oklahoma City professional, who shot a 33-35—68 to lead by a stroke after 18 holes yesterday, commented: "Whenever you shoot well you can look at the best part of things."

PAR WAS SUPPOSED to take a terrific beating at the short 6,308 yard, par 36-35, Inglewood Country Club course. But first it rained, then the wind blew in gusts up to 40 mph the thermometer stood at a chilly 48 and only nine of the 131 players in the $32,500 tournament came in under par.

Pressing Wininger were Jimmy Demaret and Eric Monti. Fashion plate Jimmy, now playing out of Kiamesha Lake, N. Y., fashioned a 33-36 and Monti of Los Angeles 35-34.

Last 8-Rounder For Patterson

Patterson probably is fighting his last eight-rounder because he became 20 last Tuesday and thus eligible to go 10 rounds by New York law. The contract for this bout, originally scheduled for Nov. 19, was signed before he reached fistic age.

Patterson, winner of 18 of 19 bouts since he turned pro after winning an Olympic title at Helsinki in 1952, is an 18 to 5 favorite over Troy, beaten only twice in 32 pro fights.

Knicks Narrow Gap in Eastern

(By The Associated Press)

Thanks to help from the Minneapolis Lakers, the eastern division race in the National Basketball Association was a little closer today.

While the Lakers were knocking off Syracuse Nationals, eastern division leaders 117-106 last night, the New York Knicks jumped into second place with an 88-83 decision over the Boston Celtics and the Philedelphia Warriors moved back into contention by downing the Milwaukee Hawks 92-79.

FORT WAYNE remained six games in front of the Lakers in the western division with a 90-83 decision over Rochester.

The Knicks rallied for 55 points in the second half in turning back the Celtics. Sweetwater Clifton was the big man in New York's success with 28 points, six of them in the clutch of a fourth period rally.

Zaharias Joins Furgol In National Golf Day

Chicago, Jan. 7 (AP)—The country's women golfers will get a chance to match cards with Babe Zaharias while the men will shoot against Ed Furgol in the third National Golf Day June 4.

Mrs. Zaharias, 1954 Women's Open champion, is the first femine star to compete in the event to raise money for the USO and the National Golf Fund sponsored by Life Magazine and the PGA.

SHE AND U. S. Open Champion Furgol will play at the Olympic Club, San Francisco, scene of the 1955 National Open. Golfers throughout the country will play the same day on courses of their choosing in an attempt to outscore the two champions and win one of two medals reading: "I beat Ed Furgol," or "I beat Babe Zaharias."

More than $317,000 has been turned over to the USO and golf fund from three National Golf Day tournaments held thus far.

Canadien Aces In Scoring Tie

(By The Associated Press)

The chief reason the Montreal Canadiens hold a five-point lead in the National Hockey League today is the rivalry between teammates Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion and big Jean Beliveau for the league's scoring championship.

They went into last night's game with the Chicago Black Hawks with Geoffrion leading by two points. They came out of Montreal's 6-0 victory still separated by the same margin.

Beliveau came through with two goals and an assist to run his total points to 43 but Geoffrion matched his mate's performance with a goal, his 25th of the season, and two assists.

The Detroit Red Wings kept within striking distance of the fast traveling Canadiens as they gained a 3-3 tie with the injury-crippled Boston Bruins.

Immigrant Held On Extortion Charges

Vancouver, B. C., Jan. 7 (AP)—A 43-year-old German immigrant who came to this country two years ago will be arraigned in police court today on charges he attempted to extort $200,000 from a Canadian millionaire and Vincent Astor of New York.

Police yesterday announced the arest of Heinz Adam. He was accused of sending letters demanding $50,000 from Harry F. Reifel, Vancouver, and $150,000 from the wealthy New Yorker.

Vancouver police said they have been working with New York postal authorities on the case for several weeks since Astor reported receiving the letter.

Contents of the letters were not revealed but police said they did not threaten physical violence. Adam is married and has two children.

ASTOR, 63, reported staying at his country home in Rhinebeck, N. Y., could not be reached for comment.

He is the great great grandson of John Jacob Astor, who founded the family fortune. Vincent inherited an estimated 75 million dollars from his father, John Jacob 3rd, who died in the 1912 Titanic disaster.

Astor is reputed to own more property in New York city than any other individual.

He served as a naval officer in both world wars and in each conflict turned over his private yachts for military services.

Wininger Leads In Coast Golf

Los Angeles, Jan. 7 (AP)—Almost everybody had something uncomplimentary to say about the weather which was provided for the start of the Los Angeles Open Golf Tournament—everybody, that is, except first round leader Bo Wininger.

It was windy, cold and rainy, but the 32-year-old Oklahoma City professional, who shot a 33-35—68 to lead by a stroke after 18 holes yesterday, commented: "Whenever you shoot well you can look at the best part of things."

PAR WAS SUPPOSED to take a terrific beating at the short 6,308 yard, par 36-35, Inglewood Country Club course. But first it rained, then the wind blew in gusts up to 40 mph the thermometer stood at a chilly 48 and only nine of the 131 players in the $32,500 tournament came in under par.

Pressing Wininger were Jimmy Demaret and Eric Monti. Fashion plate Jimmy, now playing out of Kiamesha Lake, N. Y., fashioned a 33-36 and Monti of Los Angeles 35-34.

AN ANSWER TO HECKLERS—Vic Seixas, American tennis star fresh from U. S. victory in Davis Cup play, draws a laugh from the gallery at White City Stadium, Sydney, Australia, Dec. 31, as he offers his racquet to hecklers in the stands during international tournament play. Teamed with Tony Trabert, Seixas was playing a doubles match with Australia's Mervin Rose and Rex Hartwig. The Americans won the doubles match which was part of exhibitions featuring American, Australian and Swedish teams. (AP Wirephoto).

Last 8-Rounder For Patterson

Patterson probably is fighting his last eight-rounder because he became 20 last Tuesday and thus eligible to go 10 rounds by New York law. The contract for this bout, originally scheduled for Nov. 19, was signed before he reached fistic age.

Patterson, winner of 18 of 19 bouts since he turned pro after winning an Olympic title at Helsinki in 1952, is an 18 to 5 favorite over Troy, beaten only twice in 32 pro fights.

Knicks Narrow Gap in Eastern

(By The Associated Press)

Thanks to help from the Minneapolis Lakers, the eastern division race in the National Basketball Association was a little closer today.

While the Lakers were knocking off Syracuse Nationals, eastern division leaders 117-106 last night, the New York Knicks jumped into second place with an 88-83 decision over the Boston Celtics and the Philedelphia Warriors moved back into contention by downing the Milwaukee Hawks 92-79.

FORT WAYNE remained six games in front of the Lakers in the western division with a 90-83 decision over Rochester.

The results in the eastern section left the Nationals leading the Knicks by 1½ games with the Celtics two games off the pace and the Warriors three games back.

The Knicks rallied for 55 points in the second half in turning back the Celtics. Sweetwater Clifton was the big man in New York's success with 28 points, six of them in the clutch of a fourth period rally.

Zaharias Joins Furgol In National Golf Day

Chicago, Jan. 7 (AP)—The country's women golfers will get a chance to match cards with Babe Zaharias while the men will shoot against Ed Furgol in the third National Golf Day June 4.

Mrs. Zaharias, 1954 Women's Open champion, is the first femine star to compete in the event to raise money for the USO and the National Golf Fund sponsored by Life Magazine and the PGA.

SHE AND U. S. Open Champion Furgol will play at the Olympic Club, San Francisco, scene of the 1955 National Open. Golfers throughout the country will play the same day on courses of their choosing in an attempt to outscore the two champions and win one of two medals reading: "I beat Ed Furgol," or "I beat Babe Zaharias."

More than $317,000 has been turned over to the USO and golf fund from three National Golf Day tournaments held thus far.

Canadien Aces In Scoring Tie

(By The Associated Press)

The chief reason the Montreal Canadiens hold a five-point lead in the National Hockey League today is the rivalry between teammates Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion and big Jean Beliveau for the league's scoring championship.

They went into last night's game with the Chicago Black Hawks with Geoffrion leading by two points. They came out of Montreal's 6-0 victory still separated by the same margin.

Beliveau came through with two goals and an assist to run his total points to 43 but Geoffrion matched his mate's performance with a goal, his 25th of the season, and two assists.

The Detroit Red Wings kept within striking distance of the fast traveling Canadiens as they gained a 3-3 tie with the injury-crippled Boston Bruins.

Immigrant Held On Extortion Charges

Vancouver, B. C., Jan. 7 (AP)—A 43-year-old German immigrant who came to this country two years ago will be arraigned in police court today on charges he attempted to extort $200,000 from a Canadian millionaire and Vincent Astor of New York.

Police yesterday announced the arest of Heinz Adam. He was accused of sending letters demanding $50,000 from Harry F. Reifel, Vancouver, and $150,000 from the wealthy New Yorker.

Vancouver police said they have been working with New York postal authorities on the case for several weeks since Astor reported receiving the letter.

Contents of the letters were not revealed but police said they did not threaten physical violence. Adam is married and has two children.

ASTOR, 63, reported staying at his country home in Rhinebeck, N. Y., could not be reached for comment.

He is the great great grandson of John Jacob Astor, who founded the family fortune. Vincent inherited an estimated 75 million dollars from his father, John Jacob 3rd, who died in the 1912 Titanic disaster.

Astor is reputed to own more property in New York city than any other individual.

He served as a naval officer in both world wars and in each conflict turned over his private yachts for military services.

Kiwanians Hear Cashman Tell Of Balloon Flight

Garret Cashman, 27-year-old Albany man who last summer made national headlines — and landed in jail—as a result of an unauthorized flight in a home-made lighter-than-air craft, was the speaker at the regular luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club at the Governor Clinton Hotel on Thursday.

Cashman, who told Kiwanians that it was his first attempt at public speaking, came out of his initial brush with the Civil Aeronautics Authority quite well. He revealed that he has since complied with regulations, obtained a CAA experimental license, and has received a number of "interesting offers."

HE HAS ENTERED into an agreement to ascend in his balloon at various state and county fairs this year, he revealed.

Cashman said his initial flight, the result of "talking over childhood dreams" with a boyhood friend, was definitely "not a publicity stunt." He was employed selling teaching aids to schools and colleges, and said he did not feel his experiment would "mix" well with that work.

Cashman brought with him to show his audience the craft that he used, consisting of a seat and two bicycle rims held together by rope and wire. He also had three of the 60 weather balloons used to lift him from the ground.

On his initial flight, Cashman rose to an altitude of 6,200 feet and landed 21 miles from his take-off point, after being aloft an hour and a half. At a later flight in the Adirondacks, he rose to 10,000 feet, he said.

Cashman emphasized the fact that he recaptured the thrill of the early air pioneers, a thrill that has been lost by present day commercial flyers. He predicted that flying in lighter-than-air craft may be revived and become a popular sport.

Cashman was obtained as a speaker for the club by former Kiwanian Edgar H. Bauman, who had him as a guest on a WKNY-TV program Wednesday night. He was introduced by Herbert K. Greenwald, program chairman.

Eisenhower "going over to the Democratic program."

ON THE REPUBLICAN SIDE, Sen. Knowland (R.-Calif.) edged nearer agreement with Eisenhower on foreign policy by observing that the message carried "no appeasement or policy of waiting for the dust to settle." He asserted that the administration advocates a "peace with honor based on strength to meet any further Communist adventures or aggressions." In the past, Knowland has advocated more vigorous moves against the Communists than Eisenhower has been willing to undertake.

Sen. Morse (Ind.-Ore.) who was highly critical of some of Eisenhower's domestic proposals, tacked a "statesmanlike" label to the President's proposals in the foreign and military fields.

Sen. McCarthy (R.-Wis.) said he was "extremely disappointed" that Eisenhower proposed no "positive action" toward freeing Americans held behind the Iron Curtain. But McCarthy was apparently alone in his criticism on that point.

Sen. Bridges of New Hampshire, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said it was cheering news that while tax cuts might have to be deferred this year because of defense necessities, they might materialize next year.

Sen. Douglas (D.-Ill.) termed Eisenhower "too optimistic" about economic conditions.

"The President should not ignore the fact that 1954 was a year of recession," Douglas said.

Losers Spent

Republican National Committee, $1,803,774; Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, $706,072; GOP Senate Campaign Committee, $373,910 and Citizens for Eisenhower Congressional Committee $832,428.

Democratic and labor groups reported this spending: Democratic National Committee, $1,-343,748; Senate Campaign Committee, $251,469; Congressional Committee, $58,916; Labor's League for Political Education (AFL) $485,081, and the CIO's Political Action Committee $683,417 (through October).

Among minor groups, the National Election Committee of the Communist party reported receipts and expenditures at $1,-355 each. The report indicated the chief activities causing expenses and raising funds were a rally and a conference in August.

The AFL Political Organization contributed $5,000 each to many Democratic senatorial candidates and made a top investment of $12,500 in a campaign of Sen. Douglas (D.-Ill.). The group also sent $10,000 for the campaign of Sen. Scott (D.-N.C.) and $7,500 for the campaign of Sid McMath for governor of Arkansas.

Almost as Poisonous

Although snakes cannot strike as effectively when they are in water, their bites are almost as poisonous under water as on land.

Teachers Ask

principals in other schools, we are now governed by a set of regulations which, in effect, eliminate all this communication. We believe these regulations are subject to individual interpretation and bias. We intend to work for the renewal of free communication.

"Internal communication is very important to the members of an organization whose duties keep them away from the hub of activity and interest. To deny this freedom to teachers is very serious. However, the imposition of punitive measures, designed to uphold an act of injustice, will only serve to make all teachers work and fight to regain what they feel is their right.

"We believe that the present rules in force are in need of revision. We believe so because:

"1. They are an insult to the professional pride of people who teach democratic principles and practices.

"2. They reflect upon the good standing of a school system. No other school system in the state has such a set of restrictions upon its teachers and their organizations.

"3. They hinder the movement of teachers who must take emergency steps in regard to state legislative action.

"4. They foster subjugation and intimidation of teachers by principals in that they require the perusal and approval by principals, indeed, even mandate construction in presence of principals—an obvious infringement on the right of free speech.

"5. They reflect upon the good moral training and intelligent outlook of all teachers in that they state that "nothing immoral or obscene or derogatory" shall be promulgated.

"6. Finally, they are unnecessary. They are for the convenience of one man, not for the good of the school system."

IT WAS THE CONSENSUS of some members of the board that these points had been considered in drawing up the present regulations. These regulations were promulgated by the board following complaint by the KTF several months ago that a KTF poster had been removed from the bulletin board of the George Washington School by Principal Ambrose Boyd. The teachers charged discrimination. Boyd claimed he had not been consulted and permission obtained for such posting.

Aronica, who was present at the meeting last night, said he felt the regulations were unnecessarily severe and childish, that teachers had enjoyed freedom of communications "all these years. Suddenly, they don't have them any more."

Herzog said the board was anxious to work with the teachers and that he felt there was nothing discriminatory in the regulations. He said the rules had been made because of the furore which arose over the use of the bulletin board in the George Washington School.

Aronica called attention to the "little inconveniences" caused teachers by the rules, explaining that even if a teacher wanted to drop a note in another teacher's box regarding an apartment for rent or transportation it could not be done without permission of the principal.

Bruhn said he felt if too many exceptions to the rule were admitted there would be no efficacy in the rule. He said that in his judgment the regulations were designed to take care of normal situations.

Republicans Say

HARRIMAN HAD declared that he was imposing the order on the ground that the capital construction fund was over-committed and short of cash.

Morhouse retorted in a statement that Harriman had inherited from former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey a treasury that was more than a third of a million dollars in the black. The new governor, he said, is trying to depict it as "a chaotic legacy teetering on the brink of bankruptcy."

"We do not propose to let Mr. Harriman frighten the people of this state into accepting the status of regimented pawns of transient bureaucrats who are dreaming of a return to Washington on the wings of fear, smear and contrived crises."

The battle of the budget was on. The battle over bingo was just getting underway.

The leaders of the Legislature's Democratic minorities, Sen. Francis J. Mahoney and Assemblyman Eugene F. Bannigan, promised last night to fight for immediate removal of criminal penalties for sponsoring bingo games.

Republican leaders are flatly opposed to the idea. They have promised to make bingo legal through a constitutional amendment—a three-year process.

The city fathers claim that they will need about 100 million dollars to balance the budget, and that the new program would supply about 72½ million.

THE FUND-RAISING program was taken up by Mayor Robert F. Wagner and the Board of Estimate. A spokesman for Wagner said state aid was not discussed, but he added that it would be taken up when Wagner confers with Harriman on the city's fiscal problems.

After the meeting, Wagner's spokesman said there had been agreement on these proposals, along with the estimate of additional revenue each would provide:

1. Raising the real estate tax ceiling from 2¼ to 2½ per cent of average full valuation. The state constitutional limit is 2½ per cent but the Legislature has held up enabling legislation. 26 million dollars.

2. A business income tax to replace the business gross receipts tax. 20 million.

3. Restoration of the parimutuel tax, whittled down to 1 per cent, to its original 5 per cent. 12½ million.

4. Funding of certain obligations against the city, instead of taking them from the expense budget. 14 million.

Contract Halted

A temporary interruption on one of the government contracts at Hercules Powder Company plant at Port Ewen has caused the furlough of 38 women and eight men at the plant who are employed on the project. Production on it has been temporarily halted, it was said yesterday afternoon, and after an adjustment is made it is expected operations will be resumed on the contract in February.

Planes Are Spotted

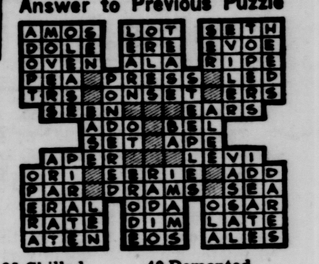

Taipeh, Formosa, Jan. 7 (AP)—Four groups of Communist planes were spotted near the Chinese Nationalist Tachen Islands today but did not attack, the Nationalist Defense Ministry said. The ministry also reported light Red artillery fired against little Quemoy Island caused no casualties or damage.

20,000 Veterinarians Needed in 20 Years

Ithaca, Jan. 7 (AP)—The nation will need 20,000 more animal doctors in the next 20 years to fight livestock and poultry diseases, the president of the American Veterinary Medical Assn. says.

Dr. A. H. Quin of Kansas City, Mo., spoke yesterday at the 47th conference for veterinarians. About 600 are attending the sessions at the State College of Agriculture at Cornell University.

"We will need 35 per cent more edible animal protein in the next 20 years," Quin said, "if our population keeps on increasing at the present rate of two million annually.

"One of the major opportunities to boost production is by reducing needless death losses caused by diseases and parasites," he told the conference.

Quin said he regarded the services of local veterinarians as "our greatest aid in accomplishing this service."

Kerhonkson '5' Visits Highland

Kiwanians Hear Cashman Tell Of Balloon Flight

Garret Cashman, 27-year-old Albany man who last summer made national headlines — and landed in jail—as a result of an unauthorized flight in a homemade lighter-than-air craft, was the speaker at the regular luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club at the Governor Clinton Hotel on Thursday.

Cashman, who told Kiwanians that it was his first attempt at public speaking, came out of his initial brush with the Civil Aeronautics Authority quite well. He revealed that he has since complied with regulations, obtained a CAA experimental license, and has received a number of "interesting offers."

HE HAS ENTERED into an agreement to ascend in his balloon at various state and county fairs this year, he revealed.

Cashman said his initial flight, the result of "talking over childhood dreams" with a boyhood friend, was definitely "not a publicity stunt." He was employed selling teaching aids to schools and colleges, and said he did not feel his experiment would "mix" well with that work.

Cashman brought with him to show his audience the craft that he used, consisting of a seat and two bicycle rims held together by rope and wire. He also had three of the 60 weather balloons used to lift him from the ground.

On his initial flight, Cashman rose to an altitude of 6,200 feet and landed 21 miles from his take-off point, after being aloft an hour and a half. At a later flight in the Adirondacks, he rose to 10,000 feet, he said.

Cashman emphasized the fact that he recaptured the thrill of the early air pioneers, a thrill that has been lost by present day commercial flyers. He predicted that flying in lighter-than-air craft may be revived and become a popular sport.

Cashman was obtained as a speaker for the club by former Kiwanian Edgar H. Bauman, who had him as a guest on a WKNY-TV program Wednesday night. He was introduced by Herbert K. Greenwald, program chairman.

Eisenhower "going over to the Democratic program."

ON THE REPUBLICAN SIDE, Sen. Knowland (R.-Calif.) edged nearer agreement with Eisenhower on foreign policy by observing that the message carried "no appeasement or policy of waiting for the dust to settle." He asserted that the administration advocates a "peace with honor based on strength to meet any further Communist adventures or aggressions." In the past, Knowland has advocated more vigorous moves against the Communists than Eisenhower has been willing to undertake.

Sen. Morse (Ind.-Ore.) who was highly critical of some of Eisenhower's domestic proposals, tacked a "statesmanlike" label to the President's proposals in the foreign and military fields.

Sen. McCarthy (R.-Wis.) said he was "extremely disappointed" that Eisenhower proposed no "positive action" toward freeing Americans held behind the Iron Curtain. But McCarthy was apparently alone in his criticism on that point.

Sen. Bridges of New Hampshire, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said it was cheering news that while tax cuts might have to be deferred this year because of defense necessities, they might materialize next year.

Sen. Douglas (D.-Ill.) termed Eisenhower "too optimistic" about economic conditions.

"The President should not ignore the fact that 1954 was a year of recession," Douglas said.

Losers Spent

Republican spending was divided thus:

Republican National Committee, $1,803,774; Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, $706,072; GOP Senate Campaign Committee, $373,910 and Citizens for Eisenhower Congressional Committee $832,428.

Democratic and labor groups reported this spending: Democratic National Committee, $1,343,748; Senate Campaign Committee, $251,469; Congressional Committee, $58,916; Labor's League for Political Education (AFL) $485,081, and the CIO's Political Action Committee $683,417 (through October).

Among minor groups, the National Election Committee of the Communist party reported receipts and expenditures at $1,355 each. The report indicated the chief activities causing expenses and raising funds were a rally and a conference in August.

The AFL Political Organization contributed $5,000 each to many Democratic senatorial candidates and made a top investment of $12,500 in a campaign of Sen. Douglas (D.-Ill.). The group also sent $10,000 for the campaign of Sen. Scott (D.-N.C.) and $7,500 for the campaign of Sid McMath for governor of Arkansas.

Almost as Poisonous

Although snakes cannot strike as effectively when they are in water, their bites are almost as poisonous under water as on land.

Republicans Say

HARRIMAN HAD declared that he was imposing the order on the ground that the capital construction fund was over-committed and short of cash.

Morhouse retorted in a statement that Harriman had inherited from former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey a treasury that was more than a third of a million dollars in the black. The new governor, he said, is trying to depict it as "a chaotic legacy teetering on the brink of bankruptcy."

"We do not propose to let Mr. Harriman frighten the people of this state into accepting the status of regimented pawns of transient bureaucrats who are dreaming of a return to Washington on the wings of fear, smear and contrived crises."

The battle of the budget was on. The battle over bingo was just getting underway.

The leaders of the Legislature's Democratic minorities, Sen. Francis J. Mahoney and Assemblyman Eugene F. Bannigan, promised last night to fight for immediate removal of criminal penalties for sponsoring bingo games.

Republican leaders are flatly opposed to the idea. They have promised to make bingo legal through a constitutional amendment—a three-year process.

The city fathers claim that they will need about 100 million dollars to balance the budget, and that the new program would supply about 72½ million.

THE FUND-RAISING program was taken up by Mayor Robert F. Wagner and the Board of Estimate. A spokesman for Wagner said state aid was not discussed, but he added that it would be taken up when Wagner confers with Harriman on the city's fiscal problems.

After the meeting, Wagner's spokesman said there had been agreement on these proposals, along with the estimate of additional revenue each would provide:

1. Raising the real estate tax ceiling from 2¼ to 2½ per cent of average full valuation. The state constitutional limit is 2½ per cent but the Legislature has held up enabling legislation. 26 million dollars.

2. A business income tax to replace the business gross receipts tax. 20 million.

3. Restoration of the parimutuel tax, whittled down to 1 per cent, to its original 5 per cent. 12½ million.

4. Funding of certain obligations against the city, instead of taking them from the expense budget. 14 million.

Contract Halted

A temporary interruption on one of the government contracts at Hercules Powder Company plant at Port Ewen has caused the furlough of 38 women and eight men at the plant who are employed on the project. Production on it has been temporarily halted, it was said yesterday afternoon, and after an adjustment is made it is expected operations will be resumed on the contract in February.

Planes Are Spotted

Taipeh, Formosa, Jan. 7 (AP)—Four groups of Communist planes were spotted near the Chinese Nationalist Tachen Islands today but did not attack, the Nationalist Defense Ministry said. The ministry also reported light Red artillery fired against little Quemoy Island caused no casualties or damage.

Teachers Ask

principals in other schools, we are now governed by a set of regulations which, in effect, eliminate all this communication. We believe these regulations are subject to individual interpretation and bias. We intend to work for the renewal of free communication.

"Internal communication is very important to the members of an organization whose duties keep them away from the hub of activity and interest. To deny this freedom to teachers is very serious. However, the imposition of punitive measures, designed to uphold an act of injustice, will only serve to make all teachers work and fight to regain what they feel is their right.

"We believe that the present rules in force are in need of revision. We believe so because:

"1. They are an insult to the professional pride of people who teach democratic principles and practices.

"2. They reflect upon the good standing of a school system. No other school system in the state has such a set of restrictions upon its teachers and their organizations.

"3. They hinder the movement of teachers who must take emergency steps in regard to state legislative action.

"4. They foster subjugation and intimidation of teachers by principals in that they require the perusal and approval by principals, indeed, even mandate construction in presence of principals—an obvious infringement on the right of free speech.

"5. They reflect upon the good moral training and intelligent outlook of all teachers in that they state that "nothing immoral or obscene or derogatory" shall be promulgated.

"6. Finally, they are unnecessary. They are for the convenience of one man, not for the good of the school system."

IT WAS THE CONSENSUS of some members of the board that these points had been considered in drawing up the present regulations. These regulations were promulgated by the board following complaint by the KTF several months ago that a KTF poster had been removed from the bulletin board of the George Washington School by Principal Ambrose Boyd. The teachers charged discrimination. Boyd claimed he had not been consulted and permission obtained for such posting.

Aronica, who was present at the meeting last night, said he felt the regulations were unnecessarily severe and childish, that teachers had enjoyed freedom of communications "all these years. Suddenly, they don't have them any more."

Herzog said the board was anxious to work with the teachers and that he felt there was nothing discriminatory in the regulations. He said the rules had been made because of the furore which arose over the use of the bulletin board in the George Washington School.

Aronica called attention to the "little inconveniences" caused teachers by the rules, explaining that even if a teacher wanted to drop a note in another teacher's box regarding an apartment for rent or transportation it could not be done without permission of the principal.

Bruhn said he felt if too many exceptions to the rule were admitted there would be no efficacy in the rule. He said that in his judgment the regulations were designed to take care of normal situations.

20,000 Veterinarians Needed in 20 Years

Ithaca, Jan. 7 (AP)—The nation will need 20,000 more animal doctors in the next 20 years to fight livestock and poultry diseases, the president of the American Veterinary Medical Assn. says.

Dr. A. H. Quin of Kansas City, Mo., spoke yesterday at the 47th conference for veterinarians. About 600 are attending the sessions at the State College of Agriculture at Cornell University.

"We will need 35 per cent more edible animal protein in the next 20 years," Quin said, "if our population keeps on increasing at the present rate of two million annually.

"One of the major opportunities to boost production is by reducing needless death losses caused by diseases and parasites," he told the conference.

Quin said he regarded the services of local veterinarians as "our greatest aid in accomplishing this service."

Highland is only 2-2 in the standings but figures to be a rough opponent on its home boards.

Families Will Move Into Housing Project

The first 20 families will begin moving into the Mt. Marion Park low-cost housing development by the end of this month, according to H. A. Wolter, developer.

An open winter so far this year has aided the builders, and the first group of 21 homes are already erected. Work on the water system is progressing rapidly, Wolter said, and occupancy of the homes is set to coincide with its completion about the end of January.

Wolter said his firm's efforts following occupancy of the first group of homes will be concentrated upon improvement of the grounds, until in February, when it is planned to bring out a new model.

About March or April, work will begin on the first store and service station to serve the residents of the new community, he said.

Hurt in Car Mishap

Eathron Little, of RD Box 169, Hurley, was treated at Kingston Hospital for cuts on the lips after a car he was driving left the road near 157 East Chester street yesterday. Officers Harold DeGraff and John Frasch reported at 3:03 p. m., that the sedan, owned by Leila T. Gardner, of 142 Maple avenue, Montclair, N. J., and driven by Little, was headed north on East Chester street. The report said it damaged a lawn at 156 East Chester street, and hit a Central Hudson pole. Little was taken to the hospital by ambulance and the car was towed from the scene.

Bills in Legislature

Albany, Jan. 7 (AP)—A Republican and Democrat are teaming up to push for twin $50,000 surveys of slums and bias in housing across the state.

The measure would set up two bi-partisan, 15-member commissions, one to look into slum growth and housing conditions, the other to investigate discrimination based on considerations of race, creed, color or national origin.

Gov. Harriman has said the state should help cities check slum growth. He also has asked that the State Commission Against Discrimination be empowered to enforce laws against bias in public housing and publicly assisted private housing.

OTHER BILLS introduced yesterday would:

Require employers paying their employes with checks to provide facilities for cashing them free of charge at a bank or other place of business.

Fix an annual $3 license fee for antique automobiles, for use only en route to and from shows or special events.

Hospitalization

they are the sicklier and more hospitalized sex," he said.

The breakdown in other age brackets showed there was an excess of 11,353 males in the age group of 14 and under; an excess of 51,185 males in the 45-64 age group and an excess of 1,949 males in the 65 and over group.

Females made up slightly more than half the nation's population—50.3 per cent. However, the survey showed that makes up 53.2 of the hospital patients.

All types of hospitals—general, nervous and mental, tuberculosis and government—were covered in the study, limited to conditions on a single day.

There were 98,605 more males than females in Veterans Administration Hospitals. However, in general nongovernmental hospitals women exceeded men by 64,631.

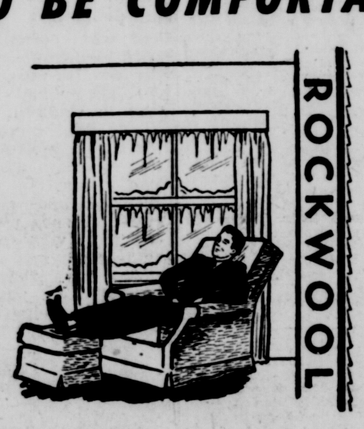

The AMA Journal commented editorially:

"If this survey has demonstrated that males rather then females are the weaker sex, part of the explanation must be found in federal hospital practices. Another speculation is that the factor of child-bearing is more than offset in the sex ratio of hospital patients by male veterans. Accidents and occupational hazards may play a role, but they hardly explain the excess of 11,400 boys among patients under 15 years of age. This survey has established that males are the more hospitalized sex."

A 1954 study by the Public Health Service showed the average expected lifetime at birth is 71.8 years for women and 65.9 for men.

Save on Schedule Is Thrift Slogan

The Kingston Thrift Week committee, in cooperation with the nine financial institutions of the city, is sending out an SOS for National Thrift Week, January 17 to 23, Albert Kurdt, chairman, said today.

"We hope our SOS will be heard by everyone in Kingston," Kurdt said. "SOS — Save On Schedule is the slogan for the observance of National Thrift Week here. Answering that kind of SOS now will mean that families in Kingston can weather misfortunes successfully without sending out financial distress signals."

IT WAS POINTED out that regular savings do more than prepare families for "rainy days." The biggest portion of savings should be for future spending, he believes.

"Be Alert to Good Living" is the Thrift Week motto," he observed. "That means that savings beyond emergency funds should be set aside to spend for big things a family wants but will never get except by planning ahead."

"Savings should be on as regular a schedule as paying monthly bills. A number of forms of saving — through savings accounts, U.S. savings bonds, life insurance and various securities — but emphasized that "Save On Schedule" should keynote the family savings program.

THE OBSERVANCE of Thrift Week here is part of a nationwide campaign by the National Thrift Week Committee, Inc., to promote individual thrift. The National Thrift Committee is a united effort of all types of thrift institutions to encourage the practice of thrift through 1) the development of individual self-reliance through savings, 2) a balanced economy at governmental and personal levels, 3) the knowledge of thrift in a free economy is basic in the future power and growth of this country, and 4) a program that will champion success in business, contentment in the home and a healthy civic interest through a well planned program of money management.

Poster and essay contests for all pupils attending Kingston schools are part of the Thrift Week observance. All entries must be in by 5 p. m. on Friday, Jan. 14. Full details may be obtained at the office of each school.

Palsy Drive Brought $14,495

Roger S. Firestone will head the national campaign of the United Cerebral Palsy drive this year which was aided by $14,495.78 in Ulster county contributions throughout 1954, it was made known today.

Firestone is the youngest of five sons of Harvey S. Firestone and president of the Firestone Plastics Company of Pottsdown, Pa.

The 1955 campaign again will be conducted throughout the month of May, according to Dr. H. L. Bibby, Ulster county president of the Cerebral Palsey.

ALTHOUGH NO LOCAL goal has been set, the nationwide UCP campaign will seek to raise $10 million for local and national services.

Local monies raised will be used for the Ulster County CP Clinic, it was pointed out.

Following is the breakdown of the monies raised throughout the county and city in 1954:

Esopus, $1,200.88, Mrs. DuVall Dunbar, chairman; Gardiner, $111.42, Mrs. Fred Begelspiker; Hurley, $264.71, Mrs. Wesley O'Brien; Kingston, $61.70, Mrs. Franklin Estes; Lloyd, $418.53, John Weisgerber; Marbletown, $502.06, Mrs. Isaac Graham; Marlborough, $429.25, Mrs. Fred Woolsey, Mrs. John Hauuska; New Paltz, $1,003, Mrs. Howard Hoffman, Mrs. C. Families Will Move Into Housing Project

The first 20 families will begin moving into the Mt. Marion Park low-cost housing development by the end of this month, according to H. A. Wolter, developer.

An open winter so far this year has aided the builders, and the first group of 21 homes are already erected. Work on the water system is progressing rapidly, Wolter said, and occupancy of the homes is set to coincide with its completion about the end of January.

Wolter said his firm's efforts following occupancy of the first group of homes will be concentrated upon improvement of the grounds, until in February, when it is planned to bring out a new model.

About March or April, work will begin on the first store and service station to serve the residents of the new community, he said.

"Demand continues strong for houses in this price bracket," Wolter said.

Hurt in Car Mishap

Adventist Services

Services at the Seventh Day Adventist Church, Pearl street, will start Saturday at 1:45 p. m. with Sabbath School. The new officers for 1955 will be in charge. Donald Shampo is the superintendent. An interesting program is planned. At 3 p. m., church services will be held. David C. Cummings will preach and the communion service will be held. Visitors are welcome.

Bills in Legislature

Albany, Jan. 7 (AP)—A Republican and Democrat are teaming up to push for twin $50,000 surveys of slums and bias in housing across the state.

The measure would set up two bi-partisan, 15-member commissions, one to look into slum growth and housing conditions, the other to investigate discrimination based on considerations of race, creed, color or national origin.

Gov. Harriman has said the state should help cities check slum growth. He also has asked that the State Commission Against Discrimination be empowered to enforce laws against bias in public housing and publicly assisted private housing.

OTHER BILLS introduced yesterday would:

Require employers paying their employes with checks to provide facilities for cashing them free of charge at a bank or other place of business.

Fix an annual $3 license fee for antique automobiles, for use only en route to and from shows or special events.
